WEATHER

Cloudy and warmer today, high in the upper 60s, very little chance of rain. Saturday, cloudy and mild with showers possible.

DREW PEARSON

How much will Spiro Agnew dominate the American foreign policy towards Greece? He is reported a supporter of the present military junta.

Top Of The Morning

WEATHER

Partly cloudy and warmer today, high in the upper 60s. Fair and not quite so cold tonight, low in the low 40s. Probability of precipitation near zero today, 20 per cent Friday night. Winds, south to southeast, 10 to 18 miles per hour, increasing to 15-25 miles per hour late Friday. Saturday, mostly cloudy and mild with a chance of showers. Thursday's weather: High 53, low 29, with .02 inch precipitation, river level 3.2 feet and rising.

KINZUA DAM REPORT

Pool level 1301.97 feet (desired summer pool level 1328 feet; maximum level 1365 feet). Upstream water 54 degrees, downstream water 51 degrees. Reading at Warren Gauge 3.05 feet and falling.

WARREN COUNTY

Rep. William Allen announces that the State Department of Forests and Waters will ask for $500,000 for improvements to Chapman Dam State Park.

The State Department of Highways is conducting what is known as an auto fleet test in the area—a test measuring roughness and other characteristics of roads.

Dr. Justin Bourquin, son of Tidoute pioneers and donor of the contents of his father's store to the Warren County Historical Society (featured at the Open House), dies in Denver, Colo., at the age of 77.

PENNSYLVANIA

The Allegheny River sludge, a massive blanket of polluting foam loosened in Butler County last week, will drain into the Ohio River Friday and state Health Department officials hope it will be diluted enough to halt a huge fish kill.

U.S. Sen. Joseph S. Clark says he has little faith in Republican sponsored polls, including one that reportedly shows him with a wide lead over his GOP opponent.

THE NATION

President Johnson announces a complete halt to the bombing at 8 a.m. Friday, Eastern Standard Time, but warns that violations will meet with immediate retaliation.

Richard M. Nixon says he trusts the President's order halting the bombing "may bring some progress" in peace negotiations with the Communists.

Hubert H. Humphrey states that the decision on Vietnam will "help the cause of peace."

Portions of the nuclear submarine Scorpion, lost with her crew of 99 last May, have been located more than 10,000 feet deep on the floor of the Atlantic.

THE WORLD

Hanoi delegation official says privately on learning of President Johnson's bombing halt announcement, "This removes a tremendous obstacle to peace—but now the political struggle for our country begins."

An Israeli commando unit slips into Egypt and blows up two bridges and a power station on the Nile River.

Pope Paul's cabinet of cardinals meets behind closed doors, perhaps to consider the worsening tide of disobedience in the Church.

SPORTS

The pro football season is at the halfway point, and the teams are heading into the stretch race for division titles; but the injury bugaboo is having its effect throughout the leagues.

Six Youngsville Eagles, led by Tom Burleigh and Arch Perrin, were named to the Crawford County All-League teams as that loop completed its play.

Warren's Dragons trek to Bradford tonight with new father Toby Shea predicting an exciting game for his charges in their final 1968 appearance.

The Little Dragons, Warren's Jayvees, racked up a season mark of 3-4 with Wednesday's victory over St. Johns Kanty Prep.

Penn State's Ted Kwalick may just be the best tight end in college football history—and ham-size pair of hands are among the Lion superstar's biggest assets.

Bomb Halt Begins at 8 A.M.

DIFFICULT DECISION

Gen. Creighton Abrams, U.S. military commander in Vietnam, made a surprise visit to Washington Oct. 29 to meet with President Lyndon B. Johnson and his top security advisers. The reasons for Abrams' visit were not disclosed but speculation connected it with recent efforts to bring peace to Vietnam. In an address to the nation Thursday night the President announced that a complete halt to all bombardment of North Vietnam will begin at 8 a.m. EST today.

$500,000 Allocation Sought To Improve Chapman Dam Park

Assemblyman William Allen announced Thursday night that the State Department of Forests and Waters will ask for $500,000 in next year's State Budget for improvements at Chapman Dam State Park.

The department, headed by Secretary Maurice K. Goddard, will request additional parking, picnic and camping areas; a disposal dumping facility; hot and cold water facilities; flush toilets and a sewage disposal plant. These improvements were requested by local sportsmen and tourist promotion groups early last summer.

Allen made his announcement at a meeting of the Kinzua Dam Vacation Bureau, held at the Flying W Ranch, Forest County. He said that a full-time marine biologist had been hired to study the Allegheny Reservoir and the Allegheny River. The biologist, a college professor, will start work at the end of the 1968-69 season.

Charles Tranter, Vacation Bureau executive director, said a favorable report had been received on the possibility of an outdoor historical drama for Warren County. The report was made by outdoor drama experts at the University of North Carolina. Details of the report will be made in the near future.

Highway Dept. Conducts Auto Fleet Test Here

State Rep. William W. Allen reported that the Pennsylvania Department of Highways is conducting what is known as the auto fleet test in his 65th Assembly District.

The test is conducted under the proposed highway functional classification program.

It measures the roughness and various characteristics of the surfaces as it travels over the highways just as the average driver rolls along. The automobile used is equipped with sensitive instruments and counters that record these conditions.

After the data is collected by this machine, it is then coordinated with other items pertinent to that section of highway—such as the type of highway, year built, base used, surface used, when and how often repaired, type of traffic, volume of traffic, effect due to severity of winter as well as heat of summer.

When all of this information is gathered it enables the department to set standards of future construction for the various parts of the state.

It will require several days for this machine to cover all of the highways in the 65th district, after which it will move on to some other Pennsylvania area.

Dr. Justin Bourquin Dies in Colorado at 77

TIDOUTE—Dr. Justin Bourquin, son of Julius and Emma Waite Bourquin, Tidoute pioneers, died Sunday, October 27, 1968, in Denver, Colo. He was born Jan. 3, 1891 in the Tidoute family home and was graduated from the Tidoute High School.

He is survived by one brother, Julius J. Bourquin of Salem, Ore., four nieces and one nephew, Jules E. Bourquin, who with his mother, Bourquin's sister-in-law, both of Denver, accompanied the remains to Tidoute. A memorial service will be held Saturday, Nov. 1 at 10 a.m. in the United Presbyterian Church.

Preceding him in death were his parents; a brother, Jay Bourquin in 1964; and a sister, Miss Caroline Bourquin in 1965. Bourquin, who was a dentist of note, held his last position in Hollidaysburg, Pa., where he was in charge of the dental department of the Veterans Hospital.

When he and his sister Caroline retired, they purchased a new home in Youngsville where he still lived until he left for Denver on Sept. 17 to visit Mrs. Louise Bourquin, the wife and family of his late brother Jay. He then left for a trip to Grand Canyon, returning to Denver Oct. 1. On Oct. 10 he was rushed to the hospital in a semi-coma and placed in the intensive care unit. Death resulted from a general breakdown and a serious heart condition.

Bourquin was one of the last four local fifty-year Masons of Temple Lodge No. 412, F&M, of Tidoute and attended its 100th anniversary here June 22, 1968.

It is to be regretted that he did not live to see the results of his most generous gift to the Warren County Historical Society, which was shown at an Open House this past week. . . . almost the complete contents of his father's store in Tidoute, now set up as an old-time country store.

Injured Dog Urgently Sought

A toy boxer dog with a severely injured right rear leg is on the loose and its owner, Richard Jordan of Box 14, Clarendon, urges area residents to be on the lookout for the injured animal, and, if found, to take him to the nearest veterinarian. The dog answers to the name of "Pudge" and was last seen near the Glade Bridge.

V.C. Notified Any Violation Means Immediate Retaliation

WASHINGTON (AP) — President Johnson announced Thursday night that a complete halt to all bombardment of North Vietnam will begin at 8 a.m. EST Friday, Washington time.

The President, addressing the nation, said he had decided to take this step—with the concurrence of his top military advisers and the governments of all the allied powers fighting in Vietnam, "in the belief that this action can lead to progress toward a peaceful settlement of the Vietnam war."

Hanoi was notified of the decision. And negotiations on the basis of it will begin in Paris on Nov. 6, with the government of South Vietnam represented at the conference table. The latter was a key bone of contention.

The National Liberation front also will be entitled to sit in on the new-terms maneuvering for peace in the long, costly war on the other side of the world. The NLF is the political arm of the Viet Cong.

"What we now expect—what we have a right to expect—are prompt, productive, serious and intensive negotiations in an atmosphere that that is conducive to progress," Johnson said.

Some progress already has come in the action he has taken, Johnson said, and in indications that Hanoi is willing now to talk in more substantive terms.

But the President said that steady determination and patience still will be required, along with courage, steadfastness and perseverance here at home to match that of the men fighting in Vietnam.

The presidential announcement was delivered from the movie theater and broadcasting studio in the East Wing of the White House. It followed a brief meeting Johnson held an hour and a half earlier with his top security, defense and diplomatic advisers in the Cabinet Room.

Hanoi Says Halt Removes Tremendous Obstacle

PARIS (AP) — "This removes a tremendous obstacle to peace—but now the political struggle for our country begins," a Hanoi delegation official said privately early Friday on learning of President Johnson's bombing halt announcement.

The Communist North Vietnamese delegation to the long-winded Paris talks toward peace in Vietnam seemed elated at the news but withheld formal comment pending study of the Washington announcement.

The comment about expectations of a political struggle ahead came spontaneously as a nonofficial observation.

Ambassador Xuan Thuy, leader of the Hanoi delegation, was awakened with the news at his headquarters at Champs-Élysées. The informant who reported this did not disclose the reaction of the North Vietnamese post-diplomat.

The North Vietnamese delegation is likely to hold a news conference later Friday, the source said.

The expectation in Paris is that it will announce readiness immediately to enter negotiations with the United States relating to the ending of hostilities involving the two countries.

One discordant note was sounded by the informant. He said the President one-sidedly had exempted unarmed reconnaissance by American planes—presumably over North Vietnam—from the ending of penetrations over Communist territory.

"We want this stopped, too," the Hanoi source said.

Ambassador W. Averell Harriman's delegation declined to make any immediate comment to the ground that the presidential statement called for no elaboration.

Harriman and his deputy, Cyrus Vance, along with their aides, were at their posts at the American Embassy listening to the Johnson broadcast.

Nixon Trusts Bombing Halt 'May Bring Some Progress'

NEW YORK (AP) — Republican Richard M. Nixon told a nationally televised campaign rally Thursday night he trusts that President Johnson's order halting the bombing in North Vietnam "may bring some progress" in peace negotiations with the Communists.

Beyond that, Nixon said little of the dramatic Johnson move on the night of a Republican political extravaganza in Madison Square Garden.

"I pledge a new foreign policy for America," Nixon told a capacity crowd of Republicans put at 17,500 persons.

"As you are probably aware tonight, the President anand along the way, the chief executive took time to notify the three presidential nominees, Democrat Hubert H. Humphrey, Republican Richard M. Nixon and Independent American George C. Wallace of the decision he had reached. This was about 6 p.m. EST. Twenty minutes later he got

Foreign Reaction In Brief

By THE ASSOCIATED PRESS
OTTAWA (AP) — Foreign Secretary Mitchell Sharp hailed President Johnson's decision to halt the bombing of North Vietnam as a "courageous" step. He said Canada is ready to help in Vietnam peacekeeping efforts.

BONN (AP) — The West German government said cessation of bombing proves once again the readiness of the U.S. government to end the war in Vietnam.

TOKYO (AP) — The Japanese government and business and economic circles welcomed an end to the bombing of North Vietnam even though an end to the war promised to hit Japan's export earnings.

HHH: Decision Will Help Cause of Peace

NEWARK, N.J. (AP) — Vice President Hubert H. Humphrey said Thursday night that President Johnson's decision on Vietnam will "help the cause of peace."

Humphrey listened to the speech on a car radio at Newark Airport prior to departing for Battle Creek, Mich., for a campaign appearance.

He had conferred with the President by telephone about 6 p.m. He said Johnson had also called Richard M. Nixon and George C. Wallace.

"I fully support this action," Humphrey told an impromptu news conference from the steps of his airplane.

"As the President said, he has taken this decision in the hope that it will reduce the killing and that this is going to help the cause of peace," the vice president said. "Now let us hope and pray that the negotiations in Paris will be able to move forward in a productive manner."

U Thant Gratified

UNITED NATIONS, N.Y. (AP) — Secretary-General U Thant expressed gratification Thursday night at President Johnson's decision to stop all U.S. bombardment of North Vietnam.

He said Ambassador J. R. Wiggins, U.S. chief delegate, had informed him of the decision, shortly before Johnson announced it.

Thant declined a formal statement, saying, "I have to study this before I comment."

But when asked if he was gratified at the President's decision, he replied, "Of course. You know my position."

For more than 2½ years he has advocated the arrangement Johnson indicated, as a way to fruitful talks on peace in Vietnam.

Halt

congressional leaders of both parties on the telephone to tell them.

And he plans to see whoever turns up winner of next Tuesday's election and brief him fully on all the diplomatic steps that led to the decision. That will be immediately after the election. It could be at the Johnson ranch in Texas.

Most observers seemed to think the bombardment halt—and any heightened hopes for peace accompanying it—would be bound to help Humphrey in his uphill fight to overtake Nixon, credited as front runner in most polls.

The question was whether any such boost would be enough to put Humphrey across.

The President said that he is halting all air, naval and artillery bombardment of North Vietnam, under his current decision, but officials said this applies to all acts involving use of force, including troop activity in the North. It does exempt, however, unarmed reconnaissance.

The President made it clear that he considers some risks still are involved, and said the North Vietnamese have been put on notice that any violation of the U.S. conditions will bring immediate retaliation.

And U.S. officials were saying that what has been achieved is by no means peace at this point—merely another hopeful step toward it.

Hanoi was told pointedly in advance that any cessation of bombing in the North—if followed by abuse of the Demilitarized Zone, attacks on cities or provincial capitals, or refusal by North Vietnam to enter promptly into serious political discussions—could not be sustained. And a condition also was laid down that the discussions would have to include the elected government of South Vietnam.

Just what the form of representation of the Viet Cong will be on Hanoi's side of the bargaining table will be is not clear, except that this government is not recognizing the NLF as an equal, participating government.

The progress marked up so far, culminating in the decision for a bombing and shelling halt, has been a long, complicated, sometimes disappointing process.

The first real breakthrough came last Sunday. At that time word came through that the North Vietnamese were ready to move in accordance with conditions Johnson had started out with.

But again the President reviewed the entire picture. Before taking a final step, he wanted to reassure himself that U.S. and allied military forces would not be put at a harmful disadvantage and risk.

Gen. Creighton W. Abrams, U.S. commander in Vietnam, and the ambassador there, Ellsworth Bunker, agreed that whatever risk might be involved was worth it, informants said.

President Nguyen Van Thieu of South Vietnam reportedly agreed to go along only Thursday.

And then, Thursday night, ater checking with key advisers, Johnson went on the air to tell his fellow countrymen:

"I speak to you this evening about very important developments in our search for peace in Vietnam."

He recalled that it was March 31, when he disclosed that he was rejecting any attempt to win another presidential term, that was the starting point for trying to get talks started on a settlement of the Vietnam war. He announced then he was halting bombing of most of the North—an area including 90 per cent of North Vietnamese population.

This led to the opening of discussions in Paris in May between representatives of Hanoi and Washington.

He said the Paris discussions appeared deadlocked for weeks with no movement at all.

Polling Places Are Changed In Jamestown

JAMESTOWN — Voters in two of Jamestown's 30 polling places will be casting their ballots in the different locations in next Tuesday's general elections. The Chautauque County Board of Elections announced Thursday that voters in the fifth district of the Fourth Ward will be voting this year at Bush Elementary School. The former polling place was a vacant store at 356 Willard st.

The second change is in the second district of the Sixth Ward on the city's west side. A board of Elections spokesman said the polling place has been changed from the Nurses Home at Jamestown General Hospital to the Police Sign Building, located across the street on Glasgow ave.

Several straw polls have been conducted in the Jamestown area during the past week, and nearly all have Vice President Hubert H. Humphrey winning by the narrowest of margins. Polls conducted at two Jamestown stores in several public schools and the Jamestown Boys Club and Radio Station WJTN reveal that Humphrey will win despite the results of the national polls.

Several of the local straw polls, conducted two weeks ago, showed the winner to be Richard Nixon.

Papandreou Dead

ATHENS (AP) — George Papandreou, veteran politician and three times premier of Greece, died early Friday, 24 hours after he was operated on for a perforated ulcer. He was 80 years old.

Papandreou whose fiery political career spanned more than 50 years, was a major critic of the military-backed Greek regime that came to power in a coup in April 1967. He had been in poor health during the regime's tenure but had been watched closely.

Family Service People Serve in Many Ways

Two members of the local Family Service and Children's Aid Society will be serving in extra capacities this year and a third member of the staff will be listed in the Dictionary of International Biography.

James Krider, executive director of the local agency, in addition to his regular duties in Warren, has been appointed to the faculty of the School of Social Welfare of the State University of New York, Buffalo. Serving in the capacity of field instructor, Krider will be responsible for the supervision of a second-year graduate student from the university.

Darlene Hensell, caseworker on the agency's staff, has been named to the Family Service Association of America's Pocono Institute Committee for next year's program. One of two dozen social workers appointed to the committee, she will help to determine course material for the largest and most important Family Service Association of America function, second only to national level activities. Darlene has also been appointed chairman of the course on Crisis Intervention-Planned Short Term Therapy, a method which the local agency recently initiated. This appointment and program represents a unique opportunity for the agency to participate in advanced training programming for family agencies of the eastern United States.

A third member of the local agency, Dr. Leon D. Radaker, Ph.D., will be listed in the Dictionary of International Biography, published in London, Eng. The dictionary is an interdisciplinary listing of scientists of all nations with membership based on at least five original research publications.

A PUP WITHOUT A HOME

Lily Belle, a snowy white hound with brown markings, being held by the Warren County Humane Society, will be put away if a home is not found for her. The healthy little dog is friendly and would like a permanent home. The society asks prospective owners to call 726-4961, before it is too late. The society also has eight other dogs looking for good homes.

Humane Society Seeks Homes for Eight Dogs

The Warren County Humane Society is looking for homes for eight dogs. Anyone wishing to give a pup or full-grown dog a good home is asked to call 726-4961.

The dogs, looking for masters are:

Hanky, shaggy and affectionate, female, coal black, medium size, and about a year old.

Lost Dog, plump and gentle, collie-shepherd type, female, light tan with black tips.

Little Lady, female, black and white terrier, cute, a year old and a good pet.

Pilot, sporty, black and white spaniel-type about a year old. Brownie, frisky, short-haired, reddish-brown terrier.

Queenie, collie-type female, regal in bearing, brown eyes and floppy ears, very gentle with children.

Boo, six-month old female,

Ramon Navarro Found Dead; Was 69

HOLLYWOOD (AP) — Ramon Navarro, one of the great romantic stars of the early days of films, was found dead in his home today. Police said he apparently had been slain.

Officers said he was found lying in bed nude in his Laurel Canyon home. There was blood and signs of a struggle—his glasses were broken and furniture was overturned—officers said.

Navarro was 69. Starting in the movies as an extra in 1917, his dark good looks shot him to the top and he starred in the silent film epic "Ben Hur."

Cardinals Meet Behind Closed Doors

VATICAN CITY (AP) — Pope Paul VI's council of cardinals held one of its rare meetings Thursday. It took place against a background of spreading disobedience in the Roman Catholic Church and a sudden gigantic tax burden for the Vatican.

Word of the closed-door session, only the second meeting of the council since the Pope set it up last year, touched off reports of an emergency atmosphere building inside the Holy See.

The cardinals who head the Vatican's sacred congregations, or ministries, were summoned by the Vatican secretary of state, Amleto Cardinal Cicognani, to the privacy of his apartment.

The council acts as Pope Paul's cabinet in the Vatican reorganization he put into effect in August 1967.

A brief announcement said only that the meeting took place. Nothing was disclosed about what was discussed.

The immediate speculation was that the cardinals had been called to consider how to fight the growing wave of defiance among lay people and some priests against Pope Paul's encyclical of July 29 banning any form of artificial or chemical contraception.

Pope Paul has deplored with increasing emphasis the refusal of so many Catholics to accept his encyclical. He recently termed such disobedience a sin and is reported preparing a major document emphasizing papal authority.

It also was speculated in Vatican circles that the cardinals discussed how the Vatican would raise the money in its tax controversy with the Italian government.

Just two days ago the Vatican did an about-face and publicly disclosed that though it still opposed paying taxes on its dividend earnings in Italy it would do so if the Rome government insisted.

This change of policy upset members of the hierarchy, who fear it will be a decisive blow to the Vatican's favored position in Italy.

Area Teachers Will Attend Meeting at Clarion State College

Teachers from Warren, Youngsville and Kane will attend the annual meeting of Cooperating Teachers at Clarion State College next Wednesday and Thursday. There will be approximately 360 teachers from 65 public school districts at the conference.

Area teachers who plan to attend include: Mrs. Mary Brumbaugh, Warren; Miss Janet Henry and Mrs. Katherine Judson, Youngsville; Owen Gayley, Mrs. Jennifer Robinson, Mrs. Helen Jones, Mrs. Lucille Wright, Miss Sarah Popelski, Miss Helen Hanson, Miss Evelyn Kahle and Mrs. Caroline Novosel, all of Kane.

The sessions will be coordinated by Dr. Ralph W. Sheriff, assistant director of Student Teaching. Dr. William J. Page, director of Student Teaching and Placement, will be in charge at both sessions.

The program is designed to acquaint teachers representing the 18 counties serving the Clarion State student teaching program with various facets of student teacher - cooperating teacher relationships considered significant by the college.

Recommend Nixon

As the days and hours pass, the 1968 presidential election draws closer. At the same time, speculation over the outcome increases.

The polls show the gap between the early frontrunner, former Vice President Richard M. Nixon, and his opponent, Vice President Hubert H. Humphrey, closing to the point where they are no longer a valid indicator. There is now the possibility George C. Wallace of the American Independent Party may take enough states to deny either major candidate the necessary 270 electoral votes. This would leave the final decision up to the House of Representatives -- an unpleasant conclusion which must not be allowed to happen ever again.

Unfortunately, some voters maintain the attitude, "we certainly were not given much to choose from."

This last attitude is unhealthy, to say the least. As American citizens, we owe it to ourselves and our country to study the candidates and decide which lever we are going to pull on November 5th.

The present administration has shown us it has failed militarily, politically and diplomatically--on the Vietnam issue--until last night's announcement by President Johnson of a complete bombing halt beginning at 8 a.m. this morning.

In addition, the Vietnamese have been allowed to steal 10 billion dollars annually from us, without contributing significantly to rebuilding their own country.

The administration's anti-poverty program has served many good causes and proven its worth in a number of areas. It also has failed to get at root causes and has turned into a costly bureaucratic football. The anti-poverty program needs to be reviewed and redesigned to fulfill its true role.

We here in Warren county area see little disrespect of law and order. Not so for the nation where the administration has been randomly permissive and overtogether with the dissidents and militants.

The administration blames everyone but itself for our national and international economic crises.

We are not convinced that any of this would change if Hubert Humphrey were to be elected on November 5th.

George Wallace is beneath consideration.

The Nixon stand on the Vietnam issue is to wage war more effectively until a negotiated settlement can be achieved. The anti-poverty program, and most other government efforts, would be brutally reappraised. On law and order, Mr. Nixon thinks, "It is the responsibility of the president of the United States to provide the leadership to make America free from fear." He believes one of the president's greatest resources is the moral authority of his office and "it's time we restored that authority -- and time we used it once again to its fullest potential." On the national economic crisis a Nixon administration would try to put the rising federal government expenditures under control. And it is reasonable to believe Mr. Nixon would be a better administrator than the sometimes chaotic Mr. Humphrey.

America obviously needs new leadership. We feel Vice President Humphrey, while an immensely productive, valuable legislator and laboring under the veil of the Vice Presidency, will keep us on the same confused wanderings of the past four years. Mr. Humphrey has, at one time or another, come down on almost every side of every issue being discussed today.

He has been a hardline hawk, a dovish hawk, a hawkish dove and a fully hatched dove on Vietnam, although not necessarily in that order. He has actively encouraged dissent and militancy and, on the other hand, stood by when the Chicago police, under the direction of his staunch ally, Mayor Daley, did some pretty active discouraging at Humphrey's own nominating convention.

Perhaps Mr. Nixon will not do any better. Certainly his regrettable choice of Spiro Agnew over a large number of more qualified men is a cause for doubt.

On balance, Mr. Nixon's capabilities and the need for change in leadership strongly recommend a vote for Richard M. Nixon for president on November 5th.

carrying the Keystone State next Tuesday.

While the for-public-consumption projections of each follow the conventional glowing and overly-optimistic pattern, underneath all this the conviction is strong in this peculiar and particular election that each (somehow) will carry the state. The feeling is strong too that whoever wins will not do so by any great smashing margin.

If there is any edge to be felt at this pre-election point it must go to Keystone State Republicans who have two things going in their favor: (1) a slight registration edge over Democrats (although in recent elections this has proven somewhat nebulous), and (2) there is a bit more unity and leadership among GOPsters than donkey riders.

Democratic old pros feel their chances have been enhanced a bit within the space of the past fortnight; Republicans are a shade more dogged about the thing, convinced there has been little if any change insofar as the edge they are confident of gaining is concerned.

In both camps, the actual concern is not so much who carries the state from a presidential standpoint as it is gaining control of the State House of Representatives and the two fiscal offices of State Auditor General and State Treasurer -- although the presidential trot may be the deciding factor in these instances.

AND STILL THEY COME — As educators long ago expected, school enrollments across the land continue to show an increase, and in this respect Pennsylvania most certainly is no exception!

According to tabulations just completed by the State Department of Public Instruction for the new 1968-69 school year, public schools in Pennsylvania have an enrollment of 2,315,470 -- up 1.55 percent from the past school year (2.2 percent increase last year).

Enrollments in elementary schools (including kindergarten enrollments) total 1,265,052, for an upswing of .32 percent (last year the increase was 1.3 percent) while secondary public schools of the state have an enrollment of 1,050,418 for an increase of 3.07 percent (versus a 3.26 upswing last year).

What county had the greatest percentage increase in enrollment this year? You'll probably never believe it but Little Forest County (smallest in the state with a population of 4500) walked off with the honor, showing an increase of 8.01 percent in its current school enrollment of 1187 -- of which 661 are in county elementary schools and 526 in secondary schools.

Letters To the Editor

TO THE EDITOR:

In regards to your article criticizing our representative in Washington, D.C., for not trying to make the Allegheny River, a wild river. Why don't you get the facts before poisoning people's minds?

Did you talk to Mr. Johnson about this thing? Well, if you did you certainly are not for the well being of Warren Co. The government would take over everything, a quarter or half mile in both directions from the river bed, cottages, homes, everything, and give what in return? Nothing except ownership of all this land. The U.S. has enough control over things already. This goes for the Susquehanna River also. They don't want it and you said that Johnson was doing more for that section than ours.

Anyway -- talk to Johnson before lambasting him in the paper. I heard him and I know why and what he stands for and he is for helping this section and not ruining what has taken years to build up -- and giving thousands ($) to Warren Co. each year in taxes.

DREW PEARSON

Agnew Concerns NATO Allies

BOSTON — How much will Spiro Agnew dominate American policy toward Greece once he becomes Vice President is the question being asked by our NATO allies almost more than in the United States. The London Sunday Times recently published a feature story on this subject.

Gov. Agnew has become an enthusiastic supporter of the Greek military junta which has been under severe criticism by many Greek-Americans and by some of our NATO allies for having imprisoned the 6,848 leaders of the political opposition, including former Premier George Papandreu, together with his son Andreas, a former professor at the University of Minnesota and the University of California.

In the United States, interest has concentrated more on Agnew's conflicts of interest in Maryland, as developed by the New York Times, its report on Agnew deal with the fact that he was a director and stockholder in a bank which held $200,000 in state funds while he, as governor, was entrusted with administering the banking laws of Maryland.

The Times also pointed out that he bought up land which was later selected as an approach to a bridge. Agnew, as governor, helped select the location of the bridge.

Many diplomats, however, are equally if not more interested in what Agnew's interest would be on foreign policy as Vice President.

Gov. Agnew's support of the Greek military is reported to be inspired in part by his association with Tom Pappas, one of the fund-raisers for Nixon-Agnew and probably the biggest businessman in Greece.

Pappas operates a steel mill in Salonika; one of the biggest oil refineries in the Mediterranean, also in Salonika; a petrochemical plant; and recently secured the Coca-Cola concession for Greece. Pappas is also a vigorous supporter of the military regime and has been used by the Central Intelligence Agency to siphon secret funds to Greece, reportedly to influence Greek politics, through his various foundations. Pappas has three foundations: the Thomas and Carrie Pappas Charitable Foundation, the Pappas Charitable Trust and the Pappas Family Foundation.

Tom Pappas, unlike his brother John, is a Republican and has been chairman of various Republican financial committees for New England dating back for a dozen years. John Pappas, a Democrat, is president of the Suffolk Downs race track outside of Boston.

Tom Pappas, together with Spyros Skouras, chairman of 20th Century-Fox motion picture company, has been active in supporting Gov. Agnew since 1966 when Agnew first jumped from an obscure county official to governor of Maryland. Skouras staged a luncheon for Agnew at that time to which prominent Greeks and Greek-Americans were invited, including some of the lords of the shipping world--Aristotle Onassis, new husband of Jacqueline Kennedy, Stavros G. Livanos, once father-in-law of Onassis, and Stavros Niarchos, Onassis's brother-in-law; Manuel Kulukundis, Later, when Nixon was looking around for a vice presidential running mate, Pappas played a part in Agnew's selection.

At a meeting in the law office of Lord, Day and Lord, of which former Attorney General Herbert Brownell is a partner, it was decided that Mayor John Lindsay of New York should be Nixon's running mate. But when Sen. Strom Thurmond turned thumbs down, Tom Pappas was one of those who encouraged the selection of his friend Gov. Agnew of Maryland. It was suggested at the time that Pappas could raise substantial funds from Greek-Americans to support Agnew.

This financial support, however, has been disappointing. Greek shipowners who were expected to contribute have been reluctant. Many Americans of Greek descent have also held back, though they have been anxious to support the three Greek-American Congressmen, John Brademas of Indiana, Peter Kyros of Maine and Nick Galifianakis of North Carolina, all highly respected members of Congress.

Pappas has worked hard at the money-raising job and even took a trip all the way to New Orleans to contact William Hells, a leader of the Greek-American community. He came back empty-handed.

Pappas has now returned to Athens to handle pressing business affairs, somewhat discouraged over the failure of Greek-Americans to support the governor of Maryland.

Among those who have contributed, however, is Joseph M. Linsey, the former Boston bootlegger who is also part owner of the Suffolk Downs race track and the Taunton dog track, and whose underworld ties combined with generous charitable contributions have made him one of the most controversial figures in Massachusetts.

Meanwhile, it will be interesting to see what influence Gov. Agnew has on American Greek policy when and if he becomes Vice President. The London Sunday Times recently commented, referring to Pappas, that "One of Agnew's most influential backers... is a Greek-American millionaire with interesting links with the Central Intelligence Agency who is an open champion of the Greek junta." In view of this, the Times noted, "The rulers of Greece have decided they no longer need to spend their $250,000 budget which they had allocated for public relations work in the United States."

Greece, the birthplace of democracy, is a key member of NATO and the first European nation to receive American aid under the Truman Doctrine. Americans of Greek descent are about evenly, though bitterly, divided as to whether the present government by the colonels is good or bad for Greece.

A Milieu of Second-Raters

The campaign, thankfully, is almost over. The assault on the ears of the nation will reach a crescendo of vilification and abuse within the next few days and an uneasy silence will fall on the land. The last brass tongue will be heard on Sunday and, before any of us know the result of the Presidential election, we may be certain of one thing -- we are in a milieu of second-raters.

It was not a textbook campaign. From start to finish, it was a war of lost opportunities. On all sides, the strategic moves and counter-moves were about as statesmanlike as a kick in the shins. George Wallace may go down in history as the only man who went from coast to coast on one speech. He was crude, defiant, insolent and fatigued.

Spiro Agnew cost votes. He is, beyond argument, the president of the Foot-in-Mouth Club. His gaffes caused shudders to run through the Nixon Laboratory of Applied Political Science. When asked his opinion of Wallace, Agnew said: "I wouldn't want my daughter to marry him." The governor evoked in millions of Negro voters a recollection of bitterness. On the plane, he called a Nisei photographer "A fat Jap" and the remark made the newspapers in Hawaii and California.

His boss wasn't much better. Richard Nixon spoke out boldly in favor of American Motherhood, with a few added equivocations in case the tide was running toward fatherhood. He ran the Republican platform as though he was aware that the train had already pulled out. From start to finish, he acted like a winner in a poker game who keeps looking at the clock. Under the blue-jawed grinlies a tempestuous temperament which causes Mr. Nixon to lose his head in blind anger. Of all the candidates, he worked harder for a longer period to attain the Presidency that he and Pat have tasted for eight years. Few of their friends like to think of the 1960 election, when Mr. Nixon blazed with venom and Mrs. Nixon wept in hysterics and, at Key Biscayne, Florida, refused the consolation of the Reverend Billy Graham, who waited outside the villa door.

George Romney was a nice clean-looking Christian candidate until he conceded that he had been "brain-washed" by President Lyndon Johnson. He killed his candidacy with one remark. The sad-smiling professor, Eugene McCarthy, spoke in the abstract and seemed to want more to be loved than voted for. He had a good thing going, but he couldn't find second gear.

The pugnaous ferret, Bob Kennedy, announced that Lyndon Johnson was indeed a great one; the week before McCarthy proved that Johnson could be knocked off in a New England primary. Bobby, as the bumper stickers proclaimed so accurately, was not Jack.

I still think he could not have won the Democratic nomination over the machine choice, Kennedy's tragic demise is a dark stain on the soul of America, and we will never know what might have happened.

The only comical candidate was Nelson Rockefeller. He

Dear Sir:

You performed a public service in bringing to our attention the warning of Dr. LaMont C. Cole (Air Depletion), T-M&O, Oct. 24, '68) concerning the depletion of oxygen from the air and the importance of conserving the vital oxygen producing organisms and those organism's environments.

I hope, however, that your editorial was not interpreted by many as a reassurance that we have nothing to worry about. You stated that as residents of Warren County "We are indeed fortunate" and "We enjoy an ecological advantage not common to those living in the urban communities." True, but I hardly need to bring to your attention the distressing fact that Warren leaves much to be desired concerning polluted air and water. The poor Allegheny River has already of course taken a beating from the up-river towns and cities but it barely gets into town when it's administered a pretty low blow by our local refinery. And there are times when the breeze is coming from the refinery, that you would swear the whole complex were cooking dead dinosaurs.

Queasily yours,

SYLVIA PORTER

Next For Social Security

Would you like to see: Social Security beneficiaries given periodic automatic benefit raises, so they could keep pace with our nation's rising living standards as well as rising living costs? Children of divorced or separated parents added to our Social Security rolls?

A new Social Security benefit in the form of a flat monthly children's allowance for all American children, similar to the allowances provided today in most major European nations?

All of these ideas have been proposed in recent months, and while none is likely to become law soon, it's a certainty that Social Security benefits will continue to be liberalized. The only questions are how much, when and in which directions.

Both candidates Humphrey and Nixon are calling for automatic Social Security benefit boosts to compensate for rises in our cost of living.

Humphrey is also asking for standard - of - living benefit raises and many other extensions. Nixon is proposing guaranteed Social Security benefits for all Americans over age 65, no matter what their other earnings. Candidate Wallace wants the elimination of the "retirement test," the limit on earnings a retiree can have and still collect Social Security benefits.

Which new benefits are probably coming comparatively soon?

Automatic benefit boosts to match living cost increases are virtually a sure thing for the near future, for the next President is committed to the step and Congress will not resist.

Periodic standard - of - living benefit raises also are a sure thing, although such raises are not likely to become automatic soon.

A significant boost in today's minimum benefit also has overwhelming support, since 2,800,000 elderly Americans now receive only the shameful minimum ($55 a month for an individual and $82.50 for a couple). The National Council of Senior Citizens wants the minimum raised at least to $150 a month for individuals and $250 for retired couples. A more realistic goal might be a minimum at the poverty line, about $125 a month for a retired individual.

And among the other likely Social Security liberalizations are: a raise in the retirement earnings test (but not its elimination); inclusion of all elderly Americans in the Social Security system, bringing in those whose jobs were not covered and who therefore did not pay Social Security taxes; a reduction in the waiting period for disability benefits, perhaps from today's six months to three months.

Not among probable new benefits in the near future are: day care centers for children of widows; special benefits for victims of automation; college benefits for children of Social Security beneficiaries.

As for costs, a substantial amount of benefit boosts, above and beyond cost of living increases, could be financed simply out of the added taxes collected because of today's rising wage levels. This assumes the earnings base (the maximum on which your Social Security taxes and benefits are figured) will be lifted from time to time.

When we go beyond the benefits which can be financed this way, we will get into the murky - murky land of welfare-type benefits which could be financed only out of the Treasury's general funds. The more we move toward this, the more we change, in a fundamental way, the contributory nature of the Social Security system of the U.S.

NEWS FROM YOUNGSVILLE

YHS Adds Two New Clubs
To Student Activities List

Two new clubs have been added to the list of student activities at Youngsville High School. A request by girls for an organization catering to the wide variety of their interests appears to be met by Tri-Hi-Y.

The nationally-known YMCA affiliate promotes high ideals of personal conduct and self-development.

The last active Tri-Hi-Y at YHS was in 1959, when Mrs. Mona Knapp was the adviser. The new club is the only one of its kind in the county at the present time.

Alan Schell, youth director at the Warren YMCA, who has been helping to get it launched, hopes it will lead to similar clubs being started in other area high schools.

Mrs. L. Carr is the faculty advisor to the group. At their meeting yesterday they discussed careers. For their next session the subject will be hair care.

The club officers are: Betsy Reynolds, president; Colleen Morris, vice president; Phyllis Smith, secretary-treasurer.

The second new organization appeals mainly to boys. It is a Ski Club, and membership is open to tenth, eleventh and twelfth grade students. The officers are: President, Mark Wood, vice president, David Thompson; secretary-treasurer, Tim Nagurney. Mr. J. Novelli is the faculty sponsor. Twenty-six members have already enrolled.

The purposes of the club are to promote the sport of skiing, and encourage safe skiing habits. Trips to several area ski spots are tentatively on the winter's calendar.

The club got off to a flying start when its contribution to the recent Student Council carnival, a five-minute movie of skiing on Youngsville's York Mountain slopes, was one of the most popular attractions.

Class Play
To Be Presented
November 15

The Senior Class play, "Our Town", by Thornton Wilder, is in rehearsal and scheduled for public presentation in the school auditorium on Friday, November 15. It will be previewed by the students at a matinee on November 14.

The class studied the play last year in junior English classes, and in choosing it for production this year were aware that it would be different from the kind of school plays Youngsville audiences have been accustomed to. They hope the fact that it is a modern classic by a top playwright will give it wide appeal.

The drama coach, Mr. F. Acklin, says Wilder's own description of the play is the best; it is "an attempt to give a price beyond all value to the little things of life."

The cast calls for eleven boys and five girls. Many other students are involved in various production fields.

Third in Series
Of Mission Study
Classes Scheduled

The third in a series of four Sunday evening adult missions study classes at the First United Methodist Church, Youngsville, will be held this Sunday at 5 p.m.

Described as a "Missions Fair", the study theme of the series is "Christ and Crisis in Southeast Asia." The Rev. Harold Knappenberger Jr., who visited Thailand, Singapore and Sibu, told about these countries at the first meeting. Last Sunday, Mr. and Mrs. Al Aiello presented a program about Burma and Indonesia. Mrs. Donald Archbold led the meeting and the Primary Choir sang, with Becky Jewell directing and Bonnie Jewell at the piano.

This Sunday the Junior Choir will present special music, with Mrs. John Kirk in charge. Dr. Ronald Simonsen of Warren will tell of his experiences in Vietnam and Cambodia.

The Philippines will be the subject of study next week.

Mayor Is for Nixon

F. W. Hendrickson of Youngsville is one of 10 Republican mayors in Pennsylvania who has gone on record for the Nixon-Agnew ticket. Announcement of Mayor Hendrickson's support was made by the United Citizens for Nixon-Agnew, Willard Hotel, Washington, D.C.

How Did
The Eagle
Become Mascot?

An item in the current Broadwalk, the YHS student newspaper, poses a question: How did the eagle become the school mascot? Four different stories uncovered by the Broadwalk student staff are mentioned, and two of them concern unlikely-sounding incidents in games with the Youngsville Fighting Eagles' arch rivals, Sheffield Wolverines—games as long ago as 1930 and 1927. The least imaginative story suggests that a committee selected the bird because all other teams around had chosen animal mascots.

It is conceded by the Broadwalk that all the stories are probably apocryphal. But they are still searching for the truth, and anybody who knows it is asked to come forward and tell it.

Athletic Activities

Basketball physicals were scheduled for yesterday and today and the first Senior High practice will take place this afternoon. A meeting for boys interested in wrestling was called for yesterday by Coach Lindsey.

AT BRADFORD

Warren Ends Grid Season Tonight

"The boys realize that this is a 'must' game if we're to have a winning season, and they're in fine spirits for it," said Warren coach Toby Shea about tonight's season finale at Bradford.

"And I think it will be a good football game," he continued. "We are two well-matched teams."

Both teams have identical 4-4 contest records so, barring a tie, one squad will end up on the losing side of the ledger. Bradford has two games remaining, however, while Warren finishes the season tonight.

The Owls are on a three-game losing streak which started with a 15-43 loss to the Wolves of Kane and carried through a 32-13 decision with Punxsutawney and a 13-7 encounter with Jamestown.

Coach John Durham has attributed the losses to injuries and mistakes in key situations. The Owl mentor hopes to be almost at full strength for this game and has spent most of the week working on ironing out ills.

As far as Warren goes, coach Durham has respect for the team. He notes that the Dragons are a bigger squad than his Owls and are capable of controlling the ball for long periods.

Joe Monaco will probably be the key to his attack. The 6-4 210 fullback is the Owl workhorse. In eight games, Monaco is averaging over six yards a carry. Dave Ross can also be expected to a considerable amount of throwing. On the year, the Owl quarterback has tossed for 14 touchdowns and is around 50 per cent on his completions.

Durham gives the edge to the Dragons because of the psychological advantage. Warren, he notes, will be playing in their final game and the Owls have one remaining.

Of the Dragon regulars, donning their uniform for the final time will be Dan Krumm, Steve Tundel, Bill Songer, Jay Goodwill, Bill Dixon, Tom Beckett, Jim Mock, Tom Marti, Tim Colter and John Marchione.

Coach Shea will be missing the services of Songer again. He'll see spot action on defense.

Craig Young will pilot the Dragons from quarterback while Krumm and Reynolds back him up at the halves. Tundel's power-running, once again, will be used from the fullback position.

Game time this evening is 8 p.m. Tickets will go on sale an hour earlier. Price of admission is a dollar for adults and fifty-cents for students.

Enormous Hands Assist Super End Ted Kwalick

UNIVERSITY PARK, Pa. (AP)—Ted Kwalick's hands are so big that one of them could envelop a football the way a normal person holds a snowball.

Kwalick is Penn State's tight end, and the way he plucks passes from defenders, blocks and runs the end-around play it's no wonder that opposing coaches this year call him the best in the nation.

"He's got the ability to be the greatest tight end that ever lived," said his own coach, Joe Paterno.

Take last week, for instance. With Penn State holding a 3-0 second quarter lead over Boston College, and showing an offense that ran like a rusty wheel, Kwalick sparked the team with five catches.

The fourth ranked and undefeated (5-0) Nittany Lions scored two quick touchdowns—one a 31-yard reception by Kwalick over two defenders—and went into the locker room with a 17-0 lead that became 29-0 at game's end.

"I just ran harder because it was a clutch play," said the 230-pound senior, who actually was explaining his whole playing philosophy. He always has to run harder, because he never receives single coverage.

Despite the extra attention downfield, Kwalick has caught 16 passes in five games, for 195 yards and one touchdown. That's an average of 12.2 yards a catch, which only looks unimpressive next to last year's average of 17.1 on 33 receptions—a record that earned Kwalick a spot on the AP second team All-America squad.

In addition, Kwalick has run the end-around 11 times for 72 yards and a 6.5 per carry rushing average. He also delivers crunching blocks that enables Penn State ball carriers to gain long yardage on outside runs.

"The tight end's primary job is blocking," Kwalick said. "He is also used as a safety valve receiver. But teams are throwing more to tight ends than they used to five or six years ago. Pass catching used to be only 10 to 15 per cent of a tight end's job. Now it's about 40 per cent."

Sound like Kwalick is talking like a coach?

"I'd like to coach and teach when I graduate, but I'd play pro ball if the opportunity arose," the physical education major said.

In addition to football, Kwalick is busy raising a family. He and his wife, Carolyn, have a seven-month-old daughter, Amy Colleen.

Much has been written about the size of Kwalick's hands, which are no advantage off the football field.

"I could never find a pair of dress gloves that were large enough," he said.

Kenya Wants Games

NAIROBI, Kenya (AP)—Kenya may make a bid to hold the 1976 Olympic games in Nairobi, Kenya's minister for cooperatives and social service said Thursday.

The minister, Ronald Ngala, said the bid depended on whether Nairobi's planned $14 million stadium is finished in time.

learned much of his golf on this course, and Barber of Sherman, Tex., with rounds of 67 were Doug Sanders, Jack Fleck, Dave Stockton and Frank Boynton.

Billy Casper, the pro golf tour's leading money winner who can clear the $200,000 mark by winning the tournament, was tied at 68 with eight others, including Don Massengale, Bruce Crampton, Bob Rosburg and Dow Finsterwald.

U.S. Open winner Lee Trevino shot a 70 and was in a lost list of golfers who had that score, including Chi Chi Rodriguez and Bob Lunn.

Rosburg blew a chance for the early lead when he followed a front-nine score of 32 with a 36 and Kermit Zarley blew sky high after starting with a nine-hole score of 31, following it with a 39 for a 70.

Archer, fifth leading money winner on the tour, said he had been troubled with flu attacks for the last three months and that he had spent four days in bed last week before competing in a Southern California tournament.

"I feel pretty good now," said Archer, who at 6-foot-6 is the tallest golfer on the pro tour. "I just get tired easily. I'm tired right now and usually 18 holes doesn't tire me out."

Archer shot consecutive birdies on the seventh, eighth, ninth and 10th holes and then after taking two bogeys, birdied the last three holes.

Casper, who has won five tournaments and $183,389 this year said, "I'm very content with my round. The golf course is in very good shape. I'm sure that's the reason the scoring is so low."

PGA LOSES TOURNEY

Memphis Open To Deal With Touring Pros' APG

MEMPHIS, Tenn. (AP)—The Memphis Open will go with the American Professional Golfers Association.

Vernon Bell, general chairman of the Memphis Open, and Billy Booe, APG tournament administrator, announced the new lineup for the tournament scheduled May 29-June 1. The APG has collected name pro golfers and has 15 tournaments under contract for next year.

Booe said from New York his organization was "delighted to have the Memphis Open. We are overwhelmed by the increase in purse and are glad to give Memphis the time they wanted."

Memphis had hoped for the May 29-June 1 date, two weeks before the National Open in Houston. It is one of the better dates to draw the top pros because they will be sharpening their game for the Open.

Asked about the switch to the new organization, Bell said: "We have done business with the PGA for 11 years and naturally have made a lot of friends and contacts. But the PGA is not able to be definitive as to who they would furnish and obviously the UPG has the majority of the players. . . . In fact everyone.

"It became pretty obvious to us we had to make this decision if we were to hold the tournament with the caliber of players Memphis is accustomed to Bell said.

Mom's To Blame!

MILAN, Italy (AP)—A leading Italian newspaper bitterly blamed dotting mothers Thursday for Italy's poor showing at the Mexico City Olympics.

Corriere Della Sera of Milan, in an editorial, said that Italian mothers produce sissies instead of athletes, children who can't go to schools by themselves and are warned against playing games because they'll sweat.

Injuries Deplete Pro Football Rosters At Season Midpoint

NEW YORK (AP)—Injuries continue to take their toll in pro football as the clubs head into the second half of the season in Sunday's games.

Running back Mel Farr is a doubtful performer for Detroit at Los Angeles and will be replaced by Dave Kopay. Farr has a strained leg tendon, suffered in the San Francisco game. The Rams, hoping to bounce back from the defeat in Baltimore, may have to go without linebacker Maxie Baughan, who has a knee injury, due to knee surgery, of defensive end Lamar Lundy. Gregg Schumacher will take his place.

Randy Johnson, Atlanta's quarterback, will be out because of broken ribs. Bob Berry will start at home against Pittsburgh.

Both quarterback Don Meredith and running back Craig Baynam suffered broken noses in Dallas' loss to Green Bay Monday night but both expect to start at New Orleans. The Cowboys, however, have defensive end Willie Townes on the inactive list with injuries and have lost reserve linebacker Jackie Baret with a broken ankle.

Baltimore will be without reserve end Alex Hawkins for the Colts game at New York and will have John Unitas available only as a backup man behind starting quarterback Earl Morrall.

The St. Louis Cards are healthy for Philadelphia. The Eagles may be without the services of their ace kick return man, Alvin Haymond, hampered by strained knee ligaments. Jim Nettles takes his place in the defensive backfield. Tight end Mike Ditka also is doubtful because of a hamstringing. Fred Hill will replace him. The Eagles also have lost rookie linebacker Adrian Young because of appendectomy.

Defensive tackle Joe Ruess is considered doubtful for Washington where Frank Bosch is his backup man. The Redskins rate linebacker Chris Hanburger, guard Willie Banks and defensive end Carl Kammerer as probable despite injuries.

Minnesota's only injury is reserve runningback Oscar Reed, who probably will play.

In the American Football League, Kansas City's running back Wendell Hayes is doubtful for the Oakland game with recurrence of a thigh injury. Defensive back Kent McCloughan and linebacker Dwain Benson are doubtful for the Raiders.

Cincinnati probably has lost quarterback Dewey Warren, who sustained a concussion against Oakland. Defensive tackle Bill Staley also is doubtful for the Bengals. Don Trull will start at quarterback for Houston although Pete Beathard, recovering from an appendectomy, is a possibility.

San Diego has six doubtfuls for the Miami game, including running back Gene Foster and Russ Smith, defensive backs Speedy Duncan and Jim Tolbert and flanker Lance Alworth. Split end Bill Darnall is doubtful for Miami.

Joe Namath jammed a thumb on his right hand last week but is the probable starting quarterback for the New York Jets against Buffalo. The Bills list defensive back Tom Janik as doubtful.

Denver reports tackle Mike Current and linebacker Chip Myrtle as questionable for the game at Boston and the Patriots rank middle linebacker Nick Buoniconti and runback specialist Willie Porter as doubtful.

SIX EAGLES MAKE ALL-LEAGUE TEAMS

Six Youngsville gridders were listed on the Crawford County All-Star squad this season. Eagle halfback Tom Burleigh was selected to the first team on offense, while center Dick Anderson was similarly honored. On the defensive squad, Arch Perrin was a unanimous choice for defensive tackle.

Three Eagles made honorable mention. They were defensive linebacker Dave Mitchell and defensive halves Terry Withrow and Tom Randinelli. With the exception of sophomore Randinelli, all of the Eagles are seniors.

League champion Townville dominated the selections, placing 11 men on the teams, while Cambridge Springs, runner-up was tabbed for seven starters.

Four players were selected for both squads. Jeff Farrar of Townville was cited for an offensive and defensive tackle slot. Teammate Al Dunbar was named as quarterback and defensive half, along with Doug Peters at end. Cambridge Springs' Ted Yusage was named to the first teams as an offensive guard and linebacker.

The rest of the selectees included Tony Styborski of Cambridge at end, Bill Gordon of Randolph at tackle and Townville's Terry VanCise at guard. Scott McKissock of Cambridge tied with Dunbar for the quarterback post. The backfield included Leroy Winans and Dallas Reynolds of Townville, Cambridge's Tom Bernosky and Randolph East-Mead's Dave Jenkins.

At the remaining defensive end slot is Randolph's Bob Campbell. Townville's Mike Shaffer is the middle guard. Tom Massung of Cambridge and Greg Kaiser are the linebackers. The backs are Paul Kennedy and Dick Walker of Randolph, and Cambridge's Doug Herton.

Arthur Daley BIG WILT'S PEN-PAL

NEW YORK — If all the old bellhops from the Catskills are true friends of Dave Newmark, they have put away their pens and their stationery and resisted the urge to write Big Wilt Chamberlain one more letter. Their buddy Dave has to look Big Wilt in the eye Friday night.

Newmark is the seven-foot-tall center from Columbia University who is now a rookie for the Chicago Bulls of the National Basketball Association. On Friday night he will have his first professional encounter with the huge center of the Los Angeles Lakers.

Nobody knows how tall Chamberlain is, because he refuses to be measured, but he is certainly three inches above seven feet. At 275 pounds, he outweighs Newmark by 35 pounds. And nobody knows how strong Wilt is, either, because he has not been known to hit anybody — very good thing for whomever he might have hit.

But there was a trying moment, four years ago, when Dave Newmark had the nervous idea that Big Wilt might want to hit him. The young man from Brooklyn, N.Y., was working as a bellhop at a resort in the Catskills, waiting to enter Columbia in the fall. A number of other young basketball players also worked at the resort, playing ball in their spare time, telling each other how they were going to dunk the world in a basket some day.

As the clumsiest bellhop in Sullivan County, N.Y., Newmark had a certain fame. Yet he began to wonder why his buddies kept grinning and waving every time they spied him.

Then one night Newmark was in the living room when he looked up and saw 275 pounds of angry man, scowling and holding a piece of paper in his hand.

"Is this your signature?" Wilt asked.

"It's my name," Newmark said, rather politely, "but it's not my signature."

Newmark also caught a glimpse of the letter. It said: "Dear Wilt — you lousy so-and-so. You couldn't even shine my converses (a brand of sneaker). If you had any guts to play me one-on-one, I'd wipe the floor with you."

With characteristic sincerity, Newmark urgently convinced Wilt that some of his buddies had written the letter as a prank. Wilt decided to investigate the other bellhops, but warned Newmark "I'll catch you later."

Wilt never did any damage to the bellhops, and the next day he challenged Newmark to a "friendly" game of one-on-one. They played against each other informally and, in 1966-67, when Newmark missed a season because of illness, he worked for a television network and became even more friendly with Wilt. But Friday night Newmark will get to see the other side of Wilt — the Giant who wears down the other Giants, not out of malice but out of sheer physical presence.

The other wise old giants of the N.B.A. have already tested the new kid on the block. Zelmo Beaty of Atlanta yanked Newmark by the arm, heaving him out of bounds. Then Beaty complained to the referees that Newmark was being too rough. And Wayne Embry of Milwaukee, almost as broad as he is tall, leaned on Newmark and whispered "I'm gonna have to hurt you, Dave." Yet Newmark knows Embry is his friend from his days with the television network.

"I hit back," Newmark adds, "I've got to do it."

There are other rugged aspects of the professional game that Newmark is learning. "My stomach hasn't gotten used to eating steak as its first meal in the middle of the afternoon," he said. "I missed my pre-game meal before my first exhibition because I didn't plan my time right. Then I got exhausted and played terribly. You're completely on your own as a pro. Nobody tells you when to eat."

The travel is another grind. The Bulls are in the middle of five road games in five cities within six nights.

"We used to take a bus to Cornell or Brown when I was in college," Newmark said. "I thought that was bad, but this is worse. Your body really feels it."

After riding in airplanes that are even too small for six-footers, Newmark then has to go out and play the experienced monsters of the N.B.A., and Friday night in Los Angeles, after seven-foot Tom Boerwinkle of Tennessee starts this game, Newmark will have his shot at Chamberlain.

Dragon JVs Finish With Win

By ROB SCHORMAN

The Warren J.V. football team closed out the season with a 33-20 victory over St. John's Kanty Prep of Erie Thursday afternoon at the high school.

The Dragons built up a 27-0 lead during the first period and a half and then hung on for the win. Corky Reynolds got the Blue and White started on the right track early in the first quarter when he burst off the right side and went 45 yards for the score. John Bullock plunged in for the extra point.

Later in the first quarter the Dragons added six more when quarterback Jeff Frailey dashed in from the 27 yard line. Frailey scored another touchdown from four yards out as he climaxed a long drive early in the second period. Frailey also carried for the extra point.

Midway through the second period the Dragons opened the gap still further when Mark Krumm took the handoff on an inside reverse and went 17 yards for the score. Frailey again carried for the PAT.

Kanty Prep got on the scoreboard shortly before the half when quarterback Kohler snuck in from the two yard line. Early in the third quarter they scored again when Berne shoot in from his linebacker spot to pick off a screen pass and go 38 yards for the score.

John Bullock cracked over from the four to give the Dragons six more just before the third period ended. Kanty Prep did the only scoring in the last quarter when Kohler hit Berne with a nine yard pass in the endzone.

The win gave the charges of coaches Ange Juliano and Chuck Mullen a 3-4 slate on the year, with the other two wins coming at the expense of Johnsonburg and Kane.

Some of the losses were close ones, however, including the 25-21 defeat by a strong Titusville team that was decided in the last thirty seconds on a 6-yard run on a broken play. Coach Mullen tags that game as probably the best game his boys played all year.

About 35 boys played on the J.V. squad this year and Mullen mentioned that "although none of the boys made the complete jump to the varsity, several of them saw spot action or played on the specialty team." As an example, he cited Denny Johnson, who played a good part of last week's game at Kane at defensive end.

Sophomore's Johnson (140), Nick Wendelboe (147), and Tom Nowacki (205) were named as three linemen who rated the best chance of finding a home on the varsity next year.

Next year's Dragons are going to need some running backs to fill the shoes of seniors Steve Tundel, Bill Songer, and Dan Krumm. The set of backs which saw the most action for the

SERVES 814 AREA

Operators at work in the new Bell Telephone Company Master Directory Assistance Bureau in Altoona. The unit serves the entire 814 area which covers a large section of Central and Northwestern Pennsylvania.

Bell Plays Role in Direct Distance Dialing Network

ALTOONA — An important role in the nationwide direct distance dialing network is being played today by a new Bell Telephone Company unit here.

Staffed by more than 70 employees, mostly operators, the office provides directory assistance service for the entire 814 numbering plan area.

This area covers 22 counties in Central and Northwestern Pennsylvania.

Max Mills, Bell's Altoona district traffic superintendent, said telephone users outside the 814 area can make use of the free service by dialing 814 plus 555-1212. He added that 814 is not required for calls from customers in the 814 area. Similar bureaus are operating in about 120 other numbering plan areas and 555-1212 is the universal number for this directory assistance service.

The MDAB includes desks for 32 operators to handle inquiries simultaneously. Instead of being arranged in long rows, the operators' positions are attractively spaced in clusters of four and six desks.

Mills explained that each operator has access to 115 telephone directories covering a total of 1,060 localities in the 814 area. Besides Altoona, the area includes Clearfield, Erie, Johnstown, Bedford, Somerset, State College and Warren.

Growth of the area directory assistance service—originally called information—has demonstrated in the fact that Bell has only 10 operator positions for the program in 1958.

Ten years ago, these operators handled about 6,500 calls daily. Today, the volume averages 19,000 per day, with Monday being the busiest calling day.

Mills indicated that the Altoona bureau has been designed with the expectation that there will be additional growth over the years in the number of directory assistance desks and employees.

To provide for the new facility, Bell's expenditures represent a capital investment of $275,000. The annual payroll for the MDAB staff alone exceeds $400,000.

U.S. Rep. J. Irving Whalley, of the 12th Congressional District, cut a ribbon to officially open the new 814 Master Directory Assistance Bureau on Friday, October 25. Altoona area business, civic and political leaders attended the ceremony.

IBM was among the active stocks, falling 1 1/2 to 307. It dropped 5 points at its opening and was the most active stock for a while. Brokers said selling was generated by a published report that IBM was planning a new line that might disrupt the growth of computer leasing.

Ling-Temco-Vought, which reported a sharp drop in earnings recently, also was very active and dropped 6 to 93.

Market's Early Strength Dwindles

NEW YORK (AP) — The stock market repeated a pattern Thursday—early strength based on Vietnam peace hopes and late weakness as the hopes dwindled. Trading was heavy.

Most of the market price indicators were higher, but an overwhelming advantage for gains versus losses was chipped away throughout most of the session, leaving the advance-decline figures in minus territory.

The Dow Jones industrial average rose 1.31 to 952.39. In the first half-hour, the average was up 5.78.

As usual on a Thursday following a Wednesday recess to catch up with paperwork, pent-up demand boomed turnover. Volume was 17.65 million shares compared with 12.34 million Tuesday.

As hope for Vietnam peace news dwindled, an early ratio of 2-to-1 in favor of gainers was wiped out. Of 1,619 issues traded on the New York Stock Exchange, 705 declined and 699 advanced. New highs for the year totaled 75 and new lows 14.

Committee Charges Police In Riots Ill-Equipped

PITTSBURGH (AP) — A police fact-finding committee charged in a report Thursday that the city's policemen were put on the streets during the height of last April's civil disorders "ill-equipped or not equipped at all."

Among charges leveled by the nine-man committee of Fort Pitt Lodge No. 1, Fraternal Order of Police, were:

- The city had no steel helmets or gas masks when the disturbances began and had to borrow the gear from the Army. The committee said the Army has threatened court action to have the items returned.
- The police bureau had only 250 rounds of .38 caliber Special ammunition for 1,500 officers, and 1897 model riot guns issued for patrol cars caused three accidents in three days.
- There were only 200 containers of chemical Mace available at the outset and an emergency order didn't arrive for two days.
- There was a shortage of vans and police had to use bread trucks with soda cases and planks as seats.

The 70-page report, compiled after the disorders following the assassination of Dr. Martin Luther King Jr., drew sharp criticism from Public Safety Director David W. Craig.

"If the top police command missed so many points that these nine experts can now see," Craig said, "how come the Pittsburgh police did such a good job in April and were praised by everybody? They could not have done it without good leadership and preparation."

Craig said most of the recommendations concerned police tactics and equipment matters within the control of the police bureau.

"Because of the delay of six months, even the correct recommendations in this report have been implemented to a great extent in the meantime, by the top police command on their own initiative," Craig said.

Shafer Boasts State Aid Tops in Nation

HARRISBURG (AP) — Gov. Shafer boasted Thursday that Pennsylvania last year contributed more financial support to private and quasi-public institutions than the other 49 states combined.

Shafer said a recent report of the Council of State Governments showed Pennsylvania provided $208 million of a national total of $288 million given to such institutions by the states.

The governor noted that the bulk of Pennsylvania's outlay to private institutions — $177 million — went to state-related and state-aided colleges and universities.

"This effort by our commonwealth is significant to me because it proves we are committed to the balanced development of private and public institutions to give service to our citizens, especially in higher education where we have the finest private schools in the nation within the borders of Pennsylvania," Shafer said in a statement.

The Council of State Governments report showed New York a distant second in financial aid to private institutions at $27.4 million. New Jersey was third at $14.4 million.

New Brighton Police Back on Jobs

NEW BRIGHTON, Pa. (AP) — Mayor Paul Spickerman said New Brighton's policemen, who reported off sick in a pay dispute, agreed Thursday to return to their jobs.

"Everything has been worked out," he said. "They're back to work. They won't get fired and they won't lose any pay."

Spickerman said the agreement came after he and other city officials met with the policemen's representative.

He said bargainers for the police and city would meet next week to try to reach an agreement through negotiations. If that fails, said Spickerman, the matter will go to arbitration.

The policemen, seeking a 10 per cent increase over their starting salary of $455 a month, started calling in sick on Tuesday.

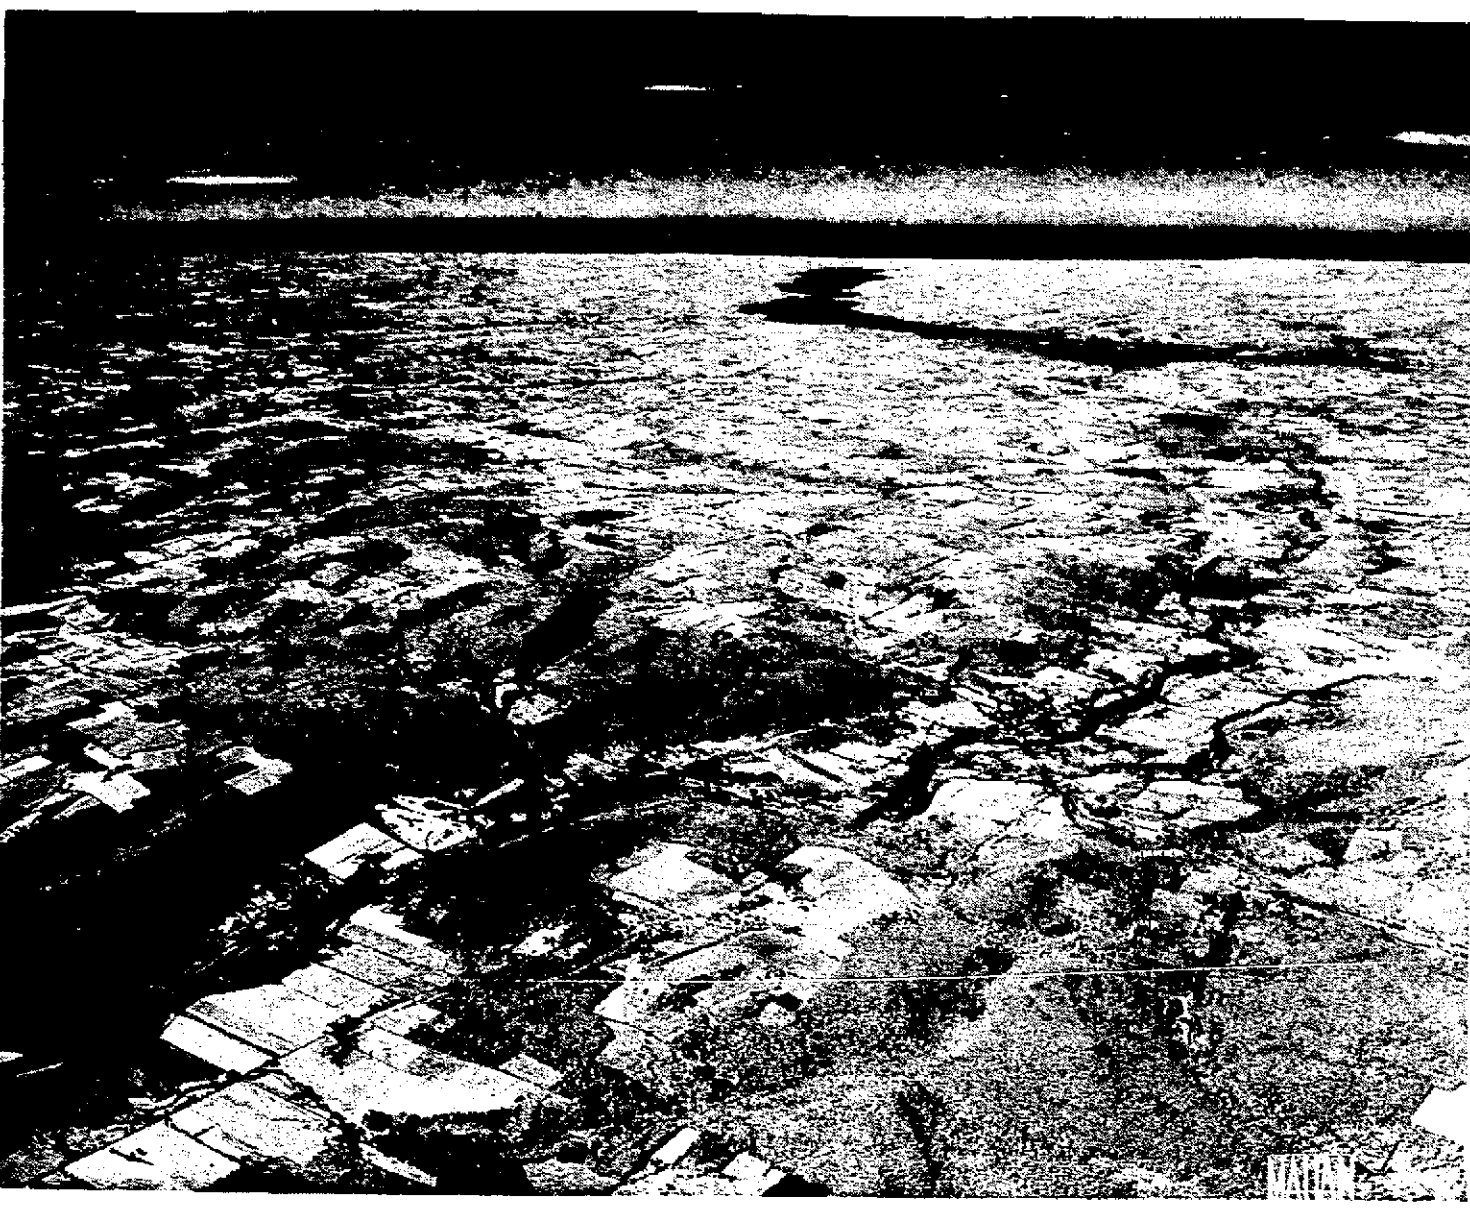

Viet Stimulates Ballot Demand

HARRISBURG (AP) — The Vietnam War has stimulated the demand for absentee ballots to the degree that county courthouses are hard-pressed to keep up.

This was disclosed Thursday as the State Elections Bureau compiled a total of 113,438 absentee ballots mailed out by reporting counties as of Oct. 23.

The bureau said the figure very easily could soar to 150,000 or more, but final figures will not be available until after the election next Tuesday.

In 1964, the 67 counties mailed out 133,505 absentee ballots, of which 79,000 went to military personnel.

FOR BENEFIT OF SKEPTICS

For benefit of skeptics who thought there was an error in the caption under Tuesday's page one picture of Kinzua Country, here is another aerial view taken at the same time from a slightly different angle. The wavy line almost bisecting the picture is Conewango Creek. To the left of it in the lower portion can be seen the State Hospital Farm Colony and the Conewango Valley Country Club. Where the creek line al-

WARREN TIMES-MIRROR AND OBSERVER
WARREN, PA., FRIDAY, NOVEMBER 1, 1968

Allegheny River Sludge Now Draining into Ohio River

PITTSBURGH (AP) — The Allegheny River sludge — a massive blanket of polluting foam loosened in Butler County last week — will drain into the Ohio River Friday and state Health Department officials expressed hope Thursday it will be diluted enough to halt a huge fish kill.

"We don't think it will completely disperse when it hits the Ohio," said Howard Luley, the department's regional sanitary engineer in Pittsburgh. "But we'll watch it and hope... that's about all we can do right now."

Luley said tests on the foaming, bubbling mass, which is at times 6-feet thick, 600-feet wide and more than a mile long, have shown a high concentration of detergents.

"But," he added, "it is very difficult to pinpoint the exact makeup since the material was in the lagoon for so long." Luley said the waste, which overflowed from a drainage lagoon at the American International Refining Co. last Thursday, is nontoxic.

Water company intake stations along the river have been advised to shut down until the sludge drifts by, but health officials said this is only to guard against foul smelling and tasting water and to protect sensitive pumping equipment.

The blanket of white suds has killed more than a million fish.

Health department officials also said PPG Industries cancelled a work shift at its Creighton plant Wednesday after Tarentum shut down its water system because it could not operate without fresh water.

A spokesman for the West Penn Power Co. said the firm's intakes and use reserve supplies of purified water earlier this week. He also said the sludge contaminated some pumping equipment.

Gov. Shafer has ordered the state Sanitary Water Board to investigate the lagoon at American International to prevent a recurrence.

Richard Deiss, assistant regional sanitary engineer at Meadville, said the lagoon did not burst.

"There was an overflow," he said. "It lasted for about six hours."

Deiss said there are two lagoons at the site. He said the company was filling in an upper lagoon and apparently the sludge flowed into the lower lagoon, causing the overflow.

He said American International bought the property this year and did not use the lagoons.

Wallace Favored At Lewisburg Pen

LEWISBURG, Pa. (AP) — George C. Wallace, who has made law and order a principal issue in his third party campaign for the presidency, appears to be the choice of a majority of inmates at the federal penitentiary here.

The results of a mock election held inside the prison walls leaked out Thursday, showing Wallace the winner with 208 votes. Democrat Hubert H. Humphrey received 91 votes and Republican Richard C. Nixon polled 27.

Five inmates indicated they had more faith in entertainers than politicians. Four voted for Negro comedian Dick Gregory and one cast a ballot for former child star Shirley Temple Black.

The mock election was the only chance the inmates had of showing their presidential preference, since under law convicted criminals lose their constitutional right to vote.

Bars Closed 'Til Hour After Polls Close

HARRISBURG (AP) — The Pennsylvania Liquor Control issued a reminder Thursday that it is unlawful to sell alcoholic beverages on election day until one hour after the polls close.

The board noted that licensed clubs are exempt from the law. All 712 state liquor stores will remain closed throughout election day Tuesday.

Sen. Clark Has Little Faith In GOP Sponsored Polls

HARRISBURG (AP) — U. S. Sen. Joseph S. Clark said Thursday he had little faith in Republican sponsored polls, including one that reportedly showed him with a wide lead over his GOP opponent.

The two-term Democrat was asked at a news conference to comment on published reports that the polls showed Republican Richard M. Nixon leading Democrat Hubert H. Humphrey 48 to 40 per cent in Pennsylvania.

Clark was asked to compare this sounding with a more recent poll that indicated he was leading Republican Richard S. Schweik 55 to 38 per cent in the U.S. Senate race.

"I don't put much confidence in the polls," Clark replied. "I think Vice President Humphrey is doing much better than indicated, and I don't think I'm doing nearly as well."

Clark, campaigning in eastern Pennsylvania, predicted he would win re-election on Tuesday, but not by the margin indicated by the poll.

The senator met with newsmen at Olmsted State Airport at nearby Middletown. Olmsted was one of the five airport stops on the day's campaign scheduled before an evening fund-raising dinner appearance in Scranton.

In response to a question, Clark estimated his campaign expenses would total approximately $400,000. Under law, senatorial candidates must file reports on their expenditures in Washington before Dec. 5.

Clark repeated a call for a $10 billion cut in military expenditures to enable the federal government to finance domestic programs aimed at helping the unemployed and disadvantaged.

He proposed a 10 per cent reduction of military personnel, maintaining that the military budget was "far higher than is required for the security of the nation."

In Scranton, Clark said the unemployment picture "and the quality of life" in northeastern Pennsylvania has improved under the Democrats. He asked voters to keep it that way.

"What did the Republican Party ever do for this area?" he asked in a prepared statement for a Lackawanna County Democratic Dinner.

"What did Richard Nixon do? What has Gov. Shafer done? And what would any opponent do if he had the chance? The answer is very little indeed."

Clark, campaigning for reelection, said under the late President John Kennedy and President Johnson unemployment in the area has fallen from 11.8 per cent to 3.2 per cent.

"We Democrats have been criticized by our Republican opponents for too much spending and encouraging handouts," said Clark. "They want to cut back on what they say are welfare programs. Do you want to cut back on education? Or job training? Or Medicare? Or Social Security? Or housing? Or hospital construction? Or library research? This is what we have spent money for in Lackawanna County. I say that it was money well spent, that it is an investment in people and in the future of this region and that is a record that we can be proud of."

Perrigo Suspended, Not Fired

Robert Anderson, mayor of Sugar Grove borough, has informed the Times-Mirror and Observer that Police Chief Claude Perrigo, Russell resident, has been suspended for 60 days and not fired as indicated in earlier reports.

The official statement that the Sugar Grove town council had voted for the 60-day suspension and after reviewing the situation, including the need for a police official in the town, will hold another hearing with Perrigo.

While voting on the suspension, Anderson said, the council commended Perrigo for the good job he had done in keeping law and order in the community.

Fire Destroys Elk County Church

BRANDY CAMP, Pa. (AP) — Fire destroyed a church in this tiny Elk County community Thursday, causing damage estimated at $85,000.

Flames from the Holy Cross Catholic church shot high into the skies and were reported visible for five to six miles. Firemen said the blaze in the frame structure started near the furnace in the basement.

The Rev. Edward Franz, pastor of the church, who estimated the damages, said he retrieved a few sacred vessels from the sanctuary before he was forced out by heat and smoke.

MARKET ST. SCHOOL HALLOWEENERS

Youngsters at Market St. School showed up wearing a variety of costumes. Books and ballpoints were put aside for a time and the costumed revelers took full advantage of the situation. Kids were dressed as gipsies, medicos, football players, tramps, witches, goblins and other grab that defied description. (Photo by Mansfield)

TREATS, NO TRICKS

It was a change of Pace at Pace's on Halloween as the midget spooks were treated to candy and other treats by the restaurant. All the Halloweeners at McClintock School were able to get their treats with no tricks. It's back to regular school today, with costumes put away for another year. (Photo by Mansfield)

Ann Landers

Answers Your Problems

DEAR ANN LANDERS: I took my three-and-five-year-olds shopping last Saturday when my sister failed me at the last moment and I had no one with whom I could leave them. The kids behaved like animals. They raced down the aisles, pulled merchandise off the racks and made a lot of noise. I decided to discipline them on the spot rather than wait till we got home. Youngsters have short memories, you know. As soon as we were on the street I walloped them both and of course they yelled. A woman rushed over and shouted in my face, "Are you having fun beating those kids, Lady? I told her to mind her own business. Then a man came up and informed me of a law against "child beating."

I was not BEATING my children, I was spanking them because they had it coming. Where do people get off making such remarks - and right in front of the kids? Comment, please. - A GOOD MOTHER WHO BELIEVES IN DISCIPLINE

DEAR MOTHER: You did the right thing - but you chose the wrong place. Children should not be spanked on the street. You should have waited until you got home and explained to them on the way what they were going to get and why.

DEAR ANN LANDERS: My wife has been ill for the last week and I've been trying to take over for her. Now I know why some women never get their housework done. There are two secrets to keeping house. One: Plan your work before you start and stick with each job until it is finished. The woman who leaves the kitchen half done to make the beds or place a telephone call will never make it. Second: Don't switch on TV. It will convert the iron in your blood to lead in the fanny. Twice I got hooked on TV - thinking I could walk away from it. The darn thing ate up my entire morning.

P.S. Maybe I should tell you that 23 years in the Navy as a White Glove Inspector gave me an edge on most men. -RETIRED C.P.O.

DEAR C.P.O.: An edge, you say? You White Glove guys are the best housekeepers in the world. Thanks for the P.S.

DEAR ANN LANDERS: My 17th birthday is next month. Last night my dad told me I have to cut my hair by then or forgo all privileges, including the car and 50 per cent of my allowance. He says long hair is a symbol of rebellion and he has let me rebel for 18 months and it's time I got it out of my system.

My hair is down to my shoulder and falls in nice waves. I keep it clean and neatly trimmed. It is even and not scruffy looking. If I cut my hair I will have to set it every night. Please be on my side and say so in print. Thanks. - HAIR

DEAR HAIR: Please tell me if you are a boy or a girl. The answer will influence my decision. If you're a boy, waves to the shoulders are too much. Settle for sideburns, let your ears show, and the back should not hide your shirt collar.

Give in or lose him. . . when a guy gives you this line, look out! For tips on how to handle the super sex salesman, check Ann Landers. Read her booklet, "Necking And Petting - What Are The Limits?" Calvary Baptist Hosts Bible Club

The Calvary Baptist Church of Warren was host to the Bible Club Movement on Monday evening of this week. The devotional message "Truth and Trust" was given by the Rev. Carl McIntyre of the Chandeliers Valley United Methodist Church.

He also played the accompaniment for Calvin Gage who sang two selections, "Tenderly He Watches" and "Until Then." Those who assembled for the meeting were greeted by George Dingeldein, chairman, Mrs. May Minser, Bible Club missionary gave a resume of her schedule of classes each week and commended mothers and personnel who help in the arrangements. She also told of the classes now being conducted by Mrs. Florence Anderson.

Mrs. Minser's feature story, given with the aid of a flammograph, was about the Jewish Tabernacle; the precious metals used in its construction; its furnishings and purpose. The Russell Bible Church will host the November 25 meeting.

Five generations are pictured here on the occasion of the 70th wedding anniversary of Mr. and Mrs. A. S. Nichols of Barnes. From left to right: Paul Nazarian of Erie holding his 7-week-old son, John Paul Nazarian; Mr. and Mrs. Nichols, great-grandparents of the baby; Mrs. Erdie (Nichols) Dehner of Tionesta, great-grandmother of baby John; and his grandmother, Mrs. Mary Kay (Dehner) Nazarian of Erie.

'Lively Issues In Penna.'

Problems in Pennsylvania, those which can be met by government, will be explored by the League of Women Voters at its meetings next week. They will take place Tuesday at 8 p. m. and Thursday at 9:30 a. m. at the YWCA. It's state program planning time again for the 7,000 members in this state. Although April and the state convention seem a long way off, it is time for every member to begin thinking about what the League of Women Voters of Pennsylvania will be studying and doing for the next two years.

Conservation is one issue, dealing with the proper use of natural resources. A League study might well begin with an identification of natural resources in Pennsylvania and a look at the laws conserving them. In some of the League's water studies the problem of land use has only been touched upon. There are problems involved in protecting agricultural lands from encroachment, in preserving open spaces so our cities can breathe, in finding ways to extract minerals with a minimum of permanent damage.

Air is also a natural resource of which we have a limited supply. Air is being polluted at an ever increasing rate. Should the League adopt a study of our environment?

Another lively issue involves taxes. It is an unusual year when the governor and the assembly are not faced with a financial crisis. To balance the budget requires either a cut-back in the projected state expenditures or else an increase in taxes. The pattern of tax increase has been to selectively raise so-called nuisance taxes in each year except the one year just after the governor's election. In that year the sales tax may be raised. Is this system reaching the point of diminishing returns?

Should the League study ways of improving Pennsylvania's tax structure so that members are informed when this problem is being fought out in the legislature? The areas of study could be: the present Pennsylvania tax structure, the status of state authorities under the revised constitution, the graduated income tax, and state laws regarding collection of local taxes.

New and prospective members are invited to come 15 minutes early for a special program conducted by Mrs. Wayne Mann, the membership chairman. She can be telephoned at 757-8187 for transportation or baby sitter arrangements at the YW.

70th Wedding Anniversary Quietly Observed by Nichols

Mr. and Mrs. A. S. (Ber) Nichols of Barnes, ages 92 and 88 respectively, quietly observed their 70th wedding anniversary at their home recently. They were married on October 15, 1898, in Tylersburg, Penna., and lived there a short time before moving to Nebraska, Penna., where Mr. Nichols worked building barges and making numerous trips down the Allegheny to Pittsburgh with them.

Later, covering a period of 18 years, the Nichols' lived in Fox Creek, Gollinza and Nebraska, Penna., during which time he worked for Collins and Kreidler Company in different capacities. At a time when the lumber company business was getting slack, and there were heard rumors of a proposed dam, Mr. Nichols moved his family to Cooper Tract where he was employed by Captain J. J. Haight Oil Company.

In 1920 the Nichols' moved to Barnes where they have remained. Mr. Nichols worked until his retirement in January 1955, for the Sheffield Township Supervisors.

They are the parents of five daughters, four of whom survive: Mrs. Erdie Dehner, Mrs. Hazle Grubbs, Mrs. Mable Cunningham and Mrs. Thelma Baker; twelve grandchildren; twenty-nine great-grandchildren, and one great-great-grandson. Mr. and Mrs. Nichols are in fairly good health and engage in doing their own daily work.

Mayor Addresses Market Street PTA

At a special meeting of PTA members, held prior to the regular meeting of the Market Street Parent-Teachers Association this week, Mayor Thomas Conaway of Warren informed those present of the progress made toward the obtaining of a new light at the corner of Market street and Second avenue (the corner where the school is located). He explained that several lights in the borough are in line for change, and that the project is now underway.

Mayor Conaway said that there are two possibilities as to the kind of light to be installed: 1. - An all-red light which allows pedestrians to cross at all crossings at the same time; or, 2. - A walk-don't walk light, which directs automobiles to stop while pedestrians cross.

Mayor Conaway emphasized

Emporium Church Is Setting For Jones-Davis Wedding

The First Methodist Church in Emporium, Penna., was the setting for the marriage of Sylvianne Jones to John Davis. The bride is the daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Philip Jones of that city, and the groom is the son of Mrs. James Davis of New York City, and the late Mr. Davis.

The Rev. Paul Schroder officiated at the afternoon service before an altar adorned with vases of yellow and gold daisy mums, with standing candelabra at either side of the sanctuary rail.

Escorted by her father, the bride wore an ivory moire gown styled with a jewel neckline, long sleeves, a raised waistline defined by grosgrain ribbon, and a full bouffant skirt which ended in a chapel train. Looped ribbon and clusters of flowers secured her floor length veil of silk illusion and she carried a colonial bouquet of white daisy mums, baby carnations, wheat and ivy.

Karen Jones, maid of honor for her sister, wore brown moire, and Kathy Jones, her sister's bridesmaid, was in gold moire. Both had matching headpieces of looped ribbon, and carried nosegays of yellow baby mums, gold daisy mums and wheat.

The brother of the bride, Robert Jones, was best man; ushers were Kenneth Davis, brother of the groom, and Stephen Burkenfield of New York City.

The mother of the bride chose a brown crepe dress with beige lace coat and brown accessories. Her corsage was of yellow and gold mums. Mrs. Daniel Swanson, grandmother of the bride of Ludlow, was also remembered with a like corsage.

A reception was held at the Buttonwood Inn after the ceremony. The couple left for a wedding trip to St. Croix, Virgin Islands, and upon their return are residing at the Lalomere Apts. E, 75th street, New York City.

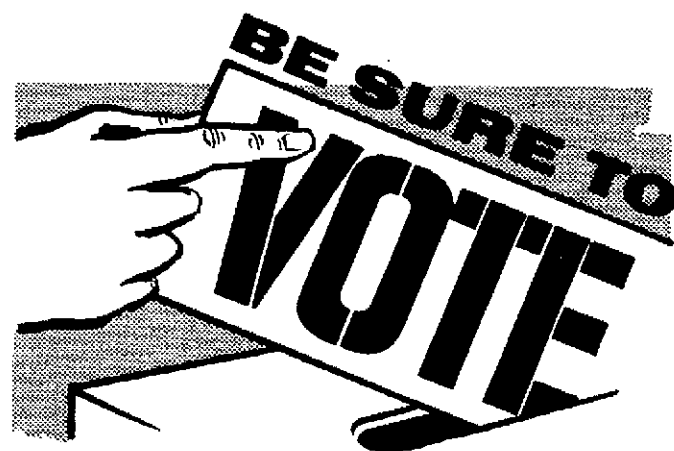

The bride is a graduate of Pittsburgh Playhouse and Seven Arts School of Drama. The groom is associated with a film studio in New York City.

Out of town guests attended from Ludlow, Warren and Pittsburgh.

A bit of curry gently sparks meatballs. Combine 1 pound lean ground beef, 1/2 cup chopped onion and 1 teaspoon salt; form into 16 meatballs. Brown in skillet; pour off fat. Add 2 cans (8 ounces each) tomato sauce, 1 teaspoon curry powder and 1/2 teaspoon sugar. Simmer 15 minutes. Serve over hot cooked rice; if desired, garnish with finely chopped sweet pickle. Makes 4 servings.

The bidding:
South West North East
3 NT Pass Pass Pass

Opening lead: Four of ♠
By taking charge of the defense at a time when the issues were in doubt, West launched a fatal attack against South's three no trump contract.

Altho South's hand is a shade shy of the requirements for a three no trump opening (he has 24 points counting the one point promotion for all the aces), he was reluctant to put even the slightest pressure on his partner and elected to gamble it out for nine tricks.

West opened the four of spades, East put up the king and was permitted to hold the trick. The jack of spades was continued and South ducked once more, following with the ten.

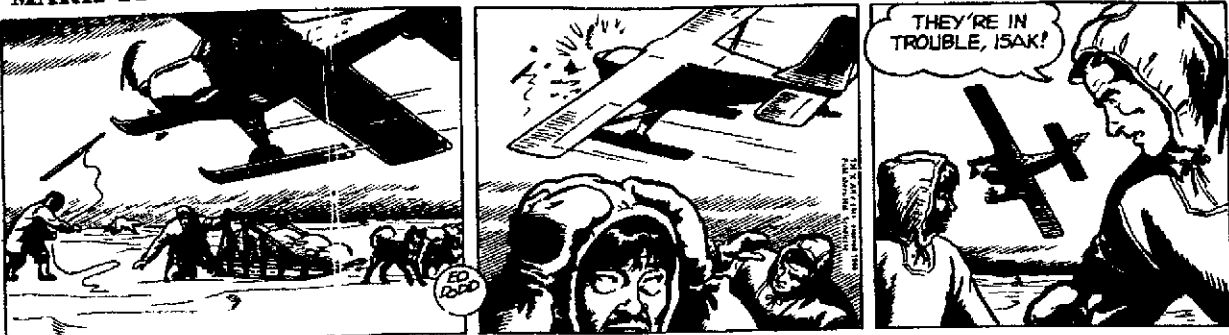

The moment of decision had arrived for the defense. West realized that it was futile to continue establishment of the spade suit; inasmuch as he held no quick card of reentry. He decided further that East would observe the necessity for switching to another suit, however, the latter might be uncertain where to attack.

A heart switch, for example, might appear more attractive to East, and yet West could provide no assistance in that direction. In order to relieve his partner of any guess, West decided to overtake the jack of spades with the queen in order to lead a club — the only suit in which he could contribute to the defensive cause.

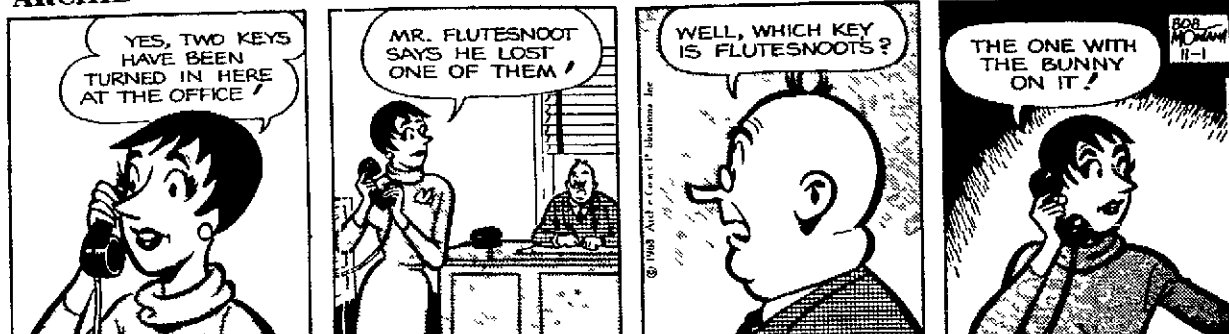

West switched to the deuce of clubs. East put up the queen and South played the ace. The best declarer could do was to run eight tricks, and he was set by one trick.

Had East been permitted to hold the second spade lead, he might have been tempted to lead the king of hearts — which appears to be an attractive shift. This play would have given South time to develop his ninth trick, by entering the North hand with the ten of diamonds, subsequently, to lead a heart thru East toward the jack in his own hand.

Hints From Heloise

DEAR HELOISE:
Here's how I store my extra coffee cups so they take up less space on my shelves. I use empty, one-half gallon plastic-coated milk cartons. First I pull the top completely open, wash and dry the carton real good. Then stack in five or six cups. My regular-size cups fit in very nicely. Fold the top of the carton over and mash it down flat. Takes up very little space on the shelf. The cartons can be laid on their sides and stacked on top of one another. I plan to cover mine with adhesive-backed plastic to match the decor of my kitchen, but I was so delighted with my discovery, just had to write right away and share it.

And we thank you no end, Penny, my love.
You're a smart cookie for thinking up that one. A space saver that cost you nothing. Saves washing seldom used cups, and all that money you didn't spend was right down my alley. And wouldn't they be great for packing those cups when moving?
Bless, you.

DEAR HELOISE:
Here's a little hint I would like to pass along to other working girls who change purses often.
In doing this, at one time or another we all find that we've left something in the other purse that we need. Right?

Well, I've solved this. In my bedroom I keep a large shoe box covered with pretty paper (so as to be decorative as well as useful). If I'm going to carry another purse the next day, I dump the entire contents of my handbag into this box when I get home.

Next morning, I choose another bag and dump everything from the box into it. I can guarantee that if you do this, you'll never forget anything and always have all the paraphernalia you need, because you can see it better spread out in the shoe box in case you only want to take part of the stuff.

LETTER OF LAUGHTER
DEAR HELOISE:
In giving a recipe to a new bride, a tablespoon of water was recommended.
The sweet young thing inquired, "Level or heaping?"
Dorothy Scallion

DEAR HELOISE:
I clean my baby's high chair under the shower and it sure saves me many hours of scrubbing. (I always do this before cleaning the shower stall.)
I put the high chair under the shower, turn on the warm water and "let'er roar" for about five minutes.
The strong spray of the shower removes all the dried food and fingerprints with very little effort on my part.
After turning the water off, I just sponge the tray and leave the high chair right in the shower stall to completely dry.

Busy Mom

Hip, Hip, hooray! Mom, you're terrific. We thank you muchly.

Here's a little tip for those of you who may not have a shower, or prefer to do it outside.

Just carry the high chair into the back yard. Spray it with a strong stream of water from the garden hose, then wash it with a sponge and some hot sudsy water.

Spray again to rinse good. Then just leave it in the shade to dry, or if you're in a hurry, wipe it off with a towel.

Heloise

DEAR HELOISE:
Here's a suggestion for coin collectors:
To clean old coins, just take a pencil eraser and rub it on the soiled side of the coin. Before you know it, the coin is clean and the date can be clearly seen!

A Tribute to Francis R. Shanley

BY LOIS McCLOSKEY

One of Tidioute's most promising young men, a budding violinist, left here in 1921 to perfect his style in New York to become a professional in the field of music.

Last Sunday, Oct. 27, he returned to his beloved hometown to be interred in the Tidioute cemetery following memorial services at 2 p.m. in the United Presbyterian Church.

It was Francis Shanley's last request that he be returned to Tidioute to rest with the people who had such confidence in him as a youth, that they established a scholarship for him to start on a career in music.

After a year in New York he found it necessary to change his musical plans due to partial deafness. In 1923 he entered The Pennsylvania State College, and was graduated at the top of his class in mechanical engineering in 1927.

Although he had lived in California since 1937, he never forgot his home town. At the present time he was the most talented, renowned, honored and skilled man ever to have been born here, said by his colleagues to be 20 years ahead of his time.

Now this so-honored small town wishes to eulogize him by this summary of the many pages of the experience record and colleagues remarks of Francis Reynolds Shanley who now rests in our midst.

In 1921, Francis Reynolds Shanley, aged 17, oldest son of the late Francis and Anna Swanson Shanley, 9 Grant st., packed his precious violin and left for New York City to enter the then Institute of Music and Arts (now Juilliard School of Music and Arts) to study the violin.

He was fortunate to have as his professor, the world-famous violinist, Kneisel. Shanley, whose first violin came from a mail order house complete with a self-teaching book of music, showed promise at an early age of becoming a professional. He soon became the protégé of the Tidioute Women's Club, frequently appearing on its programs.

The late Mrs. Robert (Belle Peters) Dunn, the then Tidioute school music teacher, realizing his great potential, inspired other public spirited citizens to sponsor a scholarship for study in New York.

At the age of 10, as a result of an illness, Shanley had lost about 30 per cent of his hearing. Although he showed great promise in New York, he decided with the advice of Kneisel, that this loss could be a detriment to him in the field of music, and so he changed his life-time career.

However he did not abandon his violin. It became a main source of funds to put him through college. He both taught and played his violin at various functions and led the Theater Orchestra, then borrowed money to cover the rest of his expenses.

He was graduated in 1927 at the top of his class, keeping up his high school record as valedictorian of the Class of 1921. From the beginning of his college years he was interested in aircraft, but upon graduating was told by the head of his department not to enter the aircraft industry since there "was so little future in it."

So Shanley accepted a position as an engineer with a refrigeration company but remained less than a year. The urge to get into aircraft was too strong. . . he joined Consolidated Aircraft Co., in Buffalo, N.Y., as an analyst and draftsman, remaining there two years.

Already his skill and keen insight in aircraft was becoming well known. He was called to the U.S. Bureau of Air Commerce (now FAA) and soon developed the early U.S. Airworthiness requirements for aircraft and became chief engineer in charge of the field for five years. He then became engineer of Airworthiness requirements for U.S. Aeronautics Administration until 1937.

By this time the aircraft industry was making great advances in California and Shanley joined Consolidated Aircraft Corp., of San Diego in charge of engineering research. The next year he joined Lockheed Aircraft Corp. at Burbank, first as structures staff engineer, then chief of that division and finally as chief of engineering research until 1947.

In 1948 Shanley joined the faculty of the college of engineering UCLA, serving as head of the structural division for a number of years. During these years, he also authored five books, one of which, "Weight-Strength Analysis of Aircraft Structures," has been translated into Russian. It is considered a classic in its field. Two of his five books are presently being used as text books.

From 1947 to the present, Shanley was a consultant for Rand Corp.; the Dept of Defense from 1954 to the present; the U.S. Air Force 1950-55; Aero-Jet - General Corp. 1964-65; Lockheed Aircraft Corp. 1960 to the present; Hughes Aircraft Co. 1960 to present.

Shanley received international recognition in 1946 for developing the theory of inelastic buckling; also he received the Moise-witz Award of the Society of Civil Engineers; in 1955 a medal from the Swedish Association of Engineers and Architects, and in 1962 one from the University of Liege, Belgium.

From 1960-69 he participated in 10 research grants including the Guggenheim Fellowship; two from Ford Foundation; six from NASA and one from American and Iron Industry.

In 1963 he became the principal investigator of new conceptions in structural design on space vehicles for NASA, a position he still held at the time of his death.

Along with all of the activities and interests already mentioned, Shanley still had time to publish some 52 papers in the field of Aeronautics. In addition to his remarkable abilities as an engineer, researcher and author, Shanley remained a talented musician, a violinist and composer of note. His composition for symphonic band was first played by UCLA band in the early 1950's at Royce Hall.

He devoted much time to teaching violin to his friend's children and at one time had a Chamber of Music just for these children. When instruments were lacking, he bought them. He made it possible for many students to finish their careers through his generous gifts.

These gratuities were a part of his pledge to Mrs. Belle Dunn which he made many years ago when visiting her here. "You know I cannot repay the money the generous people of Tidioute gave to me when I needed it. Now I am now trying to help other young people as unfortunate as I once was."

Shanley is survived by one brother Edward Shanley of Tidioute and a daughter Gretel Y. Shanley of Topanga, Calif., a professional flutist and teacher. He was looking forward to a sabbatical leave in Japan and to the writing of another book. Instead he has come home to rest with his parents in our quiet little town.

Quoting from the Engineering News, Oct. 21, 1968, "In memoriam of Francis Reynolds Shanley. . . 'The life of Francis R. Shanley served as a classic example of what the ideal engineer should be. His colleagues and friends are grateful for having shared his warm personality, quiet humor and enduring friendship.'"

To quote from the Rev. Robert Zorn's remarks at the memorial service held in the

Floyd Clinger Tells of Life In Tidioute From 1905-1909

W. Floyd Clinger, of Warren, who was born in Fagundus and came to Tidioute to attend high school in 1905, delighted the Tidioute Garden Club and friends with his reminiscences of his high school days here.

He first reminded us that at present Tidioute has the most old, preserved buildings representing the early history of the oil and lumber business of any town in existence during that era. "All of the early Pleasantville buildings are gone, and those in Titusville fast disappearing. Here you still have the old pipeline building, (now the Vets. Building) the R. Scott Building, and at one time the finest opera house in Western Pennsylvania. It will be a sad day, said Clinger, when all of these are gone."

In referring to the old buildings here, Clinger said, "Don't throw anything away" . . . old books, old letters, deeds, pictures, ledgers are all valuable in tracing the early history of this area. The Country Store exhibit now on display at the Warren County Historical Society according to Clinger, was made possible only because the old J. Bourquin store here had been closed many years ago and nothing had been disturbed.

Clinger started his early reminiscences by saying that he was just a country boy and at first was not accepted by the town boys. So he spent his first weeks getting to know the town, covering it on his Aunt Virginia's bicycle.

"As I stood on my grandfather's porch one day, I noticed two boys, John and June Robbins (who lived in the present Louis Schwab Sr.'s house) working on a project which turned out to be a paper balloon from a mail order house. I ventured across the street and found that what was needed was heat for an engine to put the balloon in the air."

"Immediately I suggested that I could get a tin can, some waste and kerosene from grandfather's barn to furnish the heat. And so I was in . . . I became a member of the down-town gang. Harry (Pete) Anderson, already in the gang, arrived and he and June held the balloon while John and I started the fire. "Let her go," yelled John. Away went the balloon headed right for my grandfather's barn, but a breeze turned it and it landed in a tree where it went up in a blaze with nothing left but the tin can."

"As the down-town gang, we had to compete with the up-town gang. The dividing line was Tidioute Creek. Our battleground was the old ball field on Lewis Flats where we built shacks and threw missiles at each other. We united only on Sundays when we had an out of town ball game."

"When I was a sophomore in 1907, Harry Lewis had built a flat boat which didn't sell readily, so Don Thomson, Harry Anderson, Harold (Deke) Hawkey and I offered him $25 for it. We didn't have quite enough money to swing the deal so we worked for Lewis on Saturdays. Don's father, George Thomson, and Will Turner took an interest in our project and we also had the advice of Boots Holdridge in building a cabin on the boat."

"In July of that year the four of us set out on our shanty boat with New Orleans as our destination. We made Turkeyville Eddy that night and ate most of our perishables. But we did have trout lines which kept us in fresh fish. We had just one kettle for cooking oatmeal and also served as a dishpan. Deke Hawkey was a finicky eater and tabooed this double purpose kettle. He suggested putting the dishes in a bag and trailing them in the water to wash them. This however did not prove satisfactory so Deke lived mostly on canned foods. We finally landed and docked in Oil City; when we arrived in East Brady most of our food was gone so we pan-handled our way to Parker where Deke left us and returned home. By the time we made Kittanning we were out of food and money. Here we docked and tried to sell our boat to another shanty boat owner but he offered us just $5.00. After a hungry night with little sleep we tried all day to sell the boat in town with no luck. So we cleaned out our belongings, set the boat on fire and pushed it into the river and took the passenger train home."

"We worried for weeks for fear the fire would set the wooden bridge on fire but to this day I have never heard just what did happen to it." About this time we formed the T-4-G Club with Captain Taggart as our adviser and leader and of course soon became Democrats under his tutelage. Now there are just three or four of us left, and come Tuesday, I think all of us will be voting for Nixon."

"In those days one of our greatest sports was jumping freight trains. One of our first rides was to Irvine where we got caught by the engineer, A. Mansfield from Oil City but all of us, instead of turning us in, he advised us to take the passenger train back to Tidioute but we said we had no money. "Now, said Mansfield, you just get on and when the conductor comes along, just tell him you are friends of Mansfield." It worked because we arrived safely in Tidioute."

"When school was out that year, Don Thomson, Pete Anderson and I hopped a freight going south with the first stop in West Hickory. We got off and went to A. J. Turner's store. He originally had a store here near the river bank at McGuire st. From here we hid in a lumber yard and went to sleep but awakened when a freight arrived heading north. Thomson caught on first, then Anderson, and I made it last, all on separate cars. The train slowed somewhat at the up-town grade and we all rolled off. Dirty, torn and bleeding we made our way to Encampment Hall (then a gymnasium) to clean up and my grandmother covered up for us."

"This dangerous sport came to a tragic end one day when with fire sirens screaming and Dr. Shugert rushing up town along the railroad. One of our classmates, Floyd Averill had hopped a freight to ride up to school. He fell under the wheels, had both legs severed and died as a result. The entire school attended his funeral."

(We might add here, that this tragedy was forgotten by the time we were in school because a student later had one leg severed by a freight train. There never will be another since our tracks have been abandoned.)

In describing Tidioute during the years Clinger attended high school he says, "Main street road was a tunnel between streets in winter and a series of mud holes or deep dust the rest of the year." But it was a busy prosperous town with a cutlery, chair factory, mattress factory, wagon and hub factories and machine shops. Shops opened at six in the morning, closed at six except on Saturday when many were open until midnight.

We had three meat shops with meat often hanging outside on hooks . . . the floors were covered with sawdust. There were two bakeries, one of which sold light lunches and pop and was a hangout for students. There were three flourishing hotels. Grasser's restaurant, not much more than a hole in the wall, run by a short, fat, jolly Austrian, was another hangout for students.

Prior to Clingers talk, George King reported on the calendula, flower of the month to be exhibited by men only. It is a popular annual with unscented leaves, hardy and long-lasting and can be grown in winter in green houses, according to King's report.

Hostesses for the evening were Mr. and Mrs. Rudolph Erickson, Mrs. James King, Mr. and Mrs. Charles Weir and Mr. and Mrs. Kenneth Teeple, who served cider and doughnuts.

Goddard Says Wild and Scenic Rivers Law Will Mean Little to Pennsylvania

HARRISBURG (AP) — Pennsylvania's Secretary of Forests and Waters says the newest federal conservation law will mean little to the state even though five Commonwealth rivers are included in it for study.

The law, known as the Wild and Scenic Rivers Act, means even less for the state since several hundred miles of key waterways were left out at the request of Pennsylvania congressmen.

Even if they had been included, says Dr. Maurice K. Goddard, forests and waters secretary, they wouldn't get any farther than the study stage because they are neither "wild" nor "scenic" under the new law's definitions.

As a matter of fact, said Goddard, there are no "wild" rivers in Pennsylvania, which the new law defines as "inaccessible except by trail... essentially primitive and waters unpolluted."

Few rivers in the state, he said, qualify under the law's guidelines for "scenic" — namely "free of impoundments... largely primitive... largely undeveloped but accessible in places by roads."

The ones that do qualify as "scenic" and are included under the law for federal study are already under development by the state as protected areas, said Goddard.

He identified them as Pine Creek from Ansonia, Tioga County, to Waterville, Lycoming County, and the Youghiogheny River from the Youghiogheny Reservoir near Confluence to Connellsville.

"Most of the land around Pine Creek is already state forest or state game land," said Goddard. "One set of railroad tracks has been torn up already and the area barricaded to cars."

This is an attempt to return the land to its wild state, the secretary said.

Included in this stretch is the scenic gorge known as the Grand Canyon of Pennsylvania.

"In addition," Goddard said, "the state already has bought about 13½ miles of the Youghiogheny River shoreline with Project 70 bond issue funds."

The two other river stretches included for study under the Wild River Act are the Delaware between Hancock, N. Y., and Matamoras, Pa., and the Allegheny between East Brady, Armstrong County, and its mouth at Pittsburgh.

The Delaware, Goddard said, offers the possibility of development as a "recreational river" under the Wild Rivers Law, especially since the lower end of the proposed study area abuts the Delaware Water Gap National Recreation Area now under development.

"It just doesn't make any sense" to include the Lower Allegheny, said Goddard. "It includes some of the most heavily industrialized riverbank in the state."

The Lower Allegheny was included at the request of Rep. John P. Saylor, Johnstown Republican, sponsor of the original house version of the Wild Rivers Act.

Saylor said he wanted the whole river in the bill to help protect the stream against further pollution and abuse but the upper — and wilder — portion was deleted at the request of Rep. Albert W. Johnson, Smithport Republican.

Johnson said he thought the Upper Allegheny should be dredged to allow navigation and make way for a possible canal between Lake Erie and the Allegheny.

Johnson also secured deletion of the West Branch of the Susquehanna from the study "because of the Keystone Shortway" bordering the river. Johnson contended this brings promise of industrial growth, and the Piper Aircraft Corp. wants to dig a new channel for the river to allow extension of its airport runways at Lock Haven.

A similar congressional courtesy was extended a group of New York state and Pennsylvania representatives who wanted the North Branch of the Susquehanna between Cooperstown, N. Y., and Pittston, Pa., deleted from the study.

The fifth Pennsylvania river included in the study — the Clarion from Ridgway in Elk County to its confluence with the Allegheny — will cause the state trouble because it includes the possible site of a dam and water impoundment "of the size of the Kinzua Dam," said Goddard.

The new law puts a five, and possibly an eight-year embargo, on dam construction.

"Study costs are rising about 8 per cent a year, meaning costs could rise as much as 70 per cent" while the moratorium is in effect, said the secretary.

In addition, he said, the Clarion suffers from acid mine drainage pollution which "will cost an estimated $60 million to correct."

Even if nothing comes of the federal "wild rivers" study, said Goddard, Pennsylvania will have its own "scenic rivers" under the Project 70 program.

"And I think the state has done a pretty good job already in preserving rivers," Goddard said.

Health Unit Warns Against Flu Outbreak

MAYVILLE, N.Y. — The Chautauque County Department of Health has asked all physicians in the County to exert their vigilance in surveillance and morbidity reporting for detecting possible outbreaks of Hong Kong flu if it should occur in this region this winter. The cooperation of school administrators in determining absenteeism and of hospital administrators in providing information on new admissions and cases complicated by flu will substantiate health department plans in epidemiology and control.

Dr. Lionel L. Richardson, Health Commissioner, noted that during recent weeks an epidemic of influenza in Hong Kong and outbreaks of influenza-like illness have been reported in the Far East. New York City Health Department also recorded a small number of cases in this new Hong Kong 8-68 strain with typical symptoms of influenza.

The Commissioner also added that with the continuous air and sea traffic from the far East, it is quite likely that there will be more introductions of the new strain into the United States.

A new vaccine is being prepared which will be effective against this new Hong Kong strain, but it will not be available for a few months. In the meantime, persons are urged to consult their family physician, especially those who are at highest risk, are over the age of 65, or are affected with any chronic illness.

listed in the U.S. Navy Seabees for 30 months at advanced pay grade of E-4. While Frank is with the Seabees he will be working as an engineering aide. Before enlisting he worked for Hunkin Conkey Construction Company on the Kinzua Dam as a surveyor.

Army Private James L. Carrier, 20, son of Mr. and Mrs. John Carrier of 1055 East Main street, Corry, completed eight weeks of advanced infantry training October 11 at Ft. Ord, California. He received specialized instruction in small unit tactics.

Second Lieutenant William G. Crump, 23, son of Mr. and Mrs. Maurice L. Crump, 320 Prospect, Warren, completed an officer basic course at the Army Armor School, Ft. Knox, Ky., October 9. The lieutenant received his commission through the Reserve Officer's Training Corps program at Trinity University San Antonio, Texas, where he received his B.S. degree in 1968. He is a member of Theta Tau Upsilon fraternity.
